Note Provides New Clue in WPA Slaying

OFFICERS HOPE TRACINGS MAY SHOW MOTIVE

Impressions of Original Note Reveal Slain Man Referred To Debt in Message.

FOUND ON SCRATCH PAD

Sheriff Hears Victim Lived in Fear of Life; Learns of Previous Assault.

The partly re-traced copy of a note believed to have been written by Sherman Reed, 58-year-old WPA worker, shortly before he was murdered in his cabin on Seventh avenue three days ago, loomed today as the first important clue in the brutal slaying of Reed who was found beaten to death in the kitchen of his home.

County officers and City Detective Lee Remy today had deciphered only a part of the impressions on a scratch pad which was found yesterday in Reed's cabin, but they believed it might point to a motive in the slaying.

Talked Debt With Son.

The revenge motive theory in the killing of Reed was strengthened late yesterday, Sheriff E. P. Long said, when it was learned that Reed had lived in fear of an attempt on his life for many months.

A neighbor revealed that Reed had been struck on the head and knocked unconscious one night last summer as he sat on the front steps at his cabin and that again about three weeks ago, the WPA worker fled to a neighbor's home when he believed he was being followed by two men. He never revealed the identity of his assailants if he knew who they were, his friends said.

The alleged attack last summer was not reported to authorities, Long pointed out.

Long said he and Prosecutor Glenn Marriott had questioned a number of Reed's friends and neighbors without success in their effort to uncover a cause for the slaying.

Reed, who lived alone in his three-room cottage opposite Liberty park, apparently was seen alive for the last time at 7:40 p. m. Tuesday, about 23 hours before his body was found sprawled in the

14 PLANES BURN

Crafts Used in Outstanding Flights Ruined at Miami.

MIAMI, Fla.—(U.P.)—The main hangar and 14 planes were destroyed at the municipal airport early today by fire. The loss was estimated at $500,000.

Several well known planes were destroyed, including the fleet pursuit ship of Col. Alexander P. De Seversky, airplane designer, in which he has set four speed marks and "The Texan," owned by M. L. Benedum, Pittsburgh oil magnate, in which Jimmie Mattern, round-the-world flier, searched the Arctic for lost Russian aviators.

Miami fire department inspectors will investigate the ruins today in an effort to determine the cause of the fire and of the explosion that preceded it.

Vatican Retracts Radio Blast at Nazi Germany

BULLETIN

MOUNT VERNON, O.—(INS)—Fred Mosley, Centerburg farmer, admitted today he shot and fatally wounded his wife, Phillа, 40, during a quarrel in their home Thursday night, according to Deputy Sheriff Joseph Scholts.

Scholts said Mosley refused to give him a written confession and asked that he be allowed to talk with an attorney before giving details of the shooting.

Mosley said he did not remember slugging his wife with the butt of the revolver after shooting her, Scholts declared. Mrs. Mosley's skull was crushed and two bullets had pierced her chest when her son, Leonard, 15, found her lying on the floor.

Unprecedented Act Seen as Step to Halt Breach Pending Parley.

NEGOTIATIONS START

Withdrawal of Criticism Eases Tension Between Berlin and Holy See.

(By International News Service)

VATICAN CITY—Taking a step unprecedented in the long history of the Holy See, the Vatican today formally retracted a criticism of Nazi Germany voiced over the radio last night from the Vatican station.

Coincident with this unexpected development, International News Service heard in usually reliable quarters that secret negotiations are under way between Berlin and the Holy See.

Certain Handicap.

If this is so, the Vatican retraction is understandable on the grounds that criticisms such as that made last night would be certain to handicap the negotiations.

The Vatican retraction was contained in the following official statement:

"The broadcast made last night regarding political Catholicism in relation to the Austrian situation was of purely private character. It was made without previous consultation with Cardinal Pacelli, the papal secretary of state."

The broadcast was delivered by a Jesuit father, regarded at the time as an official Vatican spokesman. He sharply rebuked Cardinal Innitzer, archbishop of Vienna, and other members of the Austrian clergy for trusting in Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's promise that the Catholic church would not be mistreated in Austria.

He assailed the Catholic hierarch for failing to recognize "a wolf in sheep's clothing"—an obvious allusion to Hitler. This remark created intense indignation in Berlin.

Tension Eased.

Official admission the broadcast was delivered over the Vatican radio without sanction of the papal department of state eased a serious situation which had threatened to widen the rift between Berlin and the Holy See.

Despite official denials, reports persist that Cardinal Innitzer has been summarily summoned to Rome to explain his statement in support of Hitler's plebiscite, however.

Capture 2,000 Prisoners in Occupation of Gandesa, 21 Miles From East Coast.

(By Associated Press)

ZARAGOZA—Insurgent Navarrese forces under Gen. Garcia Valino today occupied Gandesa, only 21 miles from the Spanish government's eastern coast—the last important stronghold in Tarragona province barring the insurgent march to the Mediterranean.

The insurgents reported capture of 2,000 prisoners in seizure of the city.

Gandesa is at the apex of a triangle of which Tortosa and the city of Tarragona, both on the coast southwest of Barcelona, form the other points. A drive between the two coastal cities would dismember government Spain.

Gandesa is the eastermost point to which insurgent forces have advanced in their northeastern Spanish offensive.

The city is on the southern flank of the line General Francisco Franco has been extending eastward to dismember Spanish govment territory.

Occupation of Gandesa, insurgent military leaders said, would open for General Franco's armies the broad Ebro river valley, into the Tortosa delta, for a final push to the sea.

By highway Gandesa is 26 miles from Tortosa. The Ebro curves in a great bend east of Gandesa and twists south to the sea below Tortosa.

Insurgent dispatches said the entire northeast Spanish front was moving forward except at Lerida

GRID STAR'S KIN HURT IN CRASH

Robert Heekin, Cincinnati, Injured In Route 42 Mishap.

Robert Heekin, jr., 23, Cincinnati, brother of Richard Heekin, one-time O. S. U. football star, suffered minor injuries and two Mansfield residents escaped unhurt when two cars collided Friday afternon on U. S. Route 42 near the city limits, according to the state highway patrol.

Heekin suffered scalp wounds and is in General hospital.

The accident occurred, the patrol said, when Heekin, going south, attempted to pass a car driven by Robert E. Schumacher, 131 South Diamond street. Schumacher said Heekin's car struck the left front wheel of his car, and turned over several times.

With Schumacher was Melvin Bauer, 40 Mansfield avenue. Neither was hurt.

Ohio 'Pioneers' On Last Lap

—Central Press Photo.

Scenes like these, reminiscent of the early history of the middle west, will be re-enacted by members of the Ipswich caravan which will travel down the Ohio river to Marietta this month and then take to the land for a tour of Ohio in the 150th anniversary observance of the founding of the Northwest territory. The caravan, sponsored by the federal government, will visit Mansfield May 2, when organizations in the city will join in a celebration. In the above pictures, the pioneers' ship, Union, is seen on the Monongahela river, and below, Betty Henler kisses one of the pioneers, Bernie Heskett, goodbye, as the boat leaves.

Schedule, Current Play Hob With 'Pioneer Party'

Northwest Territory Group Forced to Abandon Ship For Cars to Keep Pittsburgh Engagement.

A weary band of youthful "pioneers," re-enacting the historic trek into the great Northwest territory 150 years ago, but forced three times to rely on modern methods of getting around, prepared today to set sail for Marietta, O., and 50 other Ohio cities including Mansfield.

The 36 college students were forced to "abandon ship" late yesterday and board automobiles in order to arrive in Pittsburgh in time for a reception and to present a pageant depicting important events in the history of the country, United Press dispatches to The News-Journal said today.

Schedule Beats Them.

Unlike the original band of pioneers, the frontiersmen of 1938 are endeavoring to travel on schedule, and when their flagship, "Union Galley" reached Boston bridge, three miles above McKeesport and 18 miles from Pittsburgh at 5 p. m., yesterday, with a banquet at Pittsburgh scheduled for 6 p. m., the party reluctantly left their ark-like boat and adopted modern methods of transportation.

Molasses and Sulphur WAS Spring Tonic--Old Remedy Extinct as Dodo

But Sassafras, Asafetida Are Still In Demand, Pharmacists Say.

By JANE WILLIAMS

A paragraph in David Gibson's column on the editorial page today sent "your correspondent" on a tour of the drug stores with a single question—timidly propounded—"Please, do you have any black molasses and sulphur tonic?"

To a man, they looked us sternly in the eye and demanded "What, in the name of heaven, do you want with sulphur and molasses?" in exactly the same tone as they would use to ask why we wanted bichloride of mercury.

"It's a spring tonic", we muttered.

"It WAS a spring tonic, you mean", they said, "back in the days when kids wore asafetida bags around their backs, parents administered a spring tonic of sulphur and molasses—but that's as extinct as the dodo."

And so it is apparently—but equivalents have taken its place. That vile compound of dry sulphur and Orleans molasses, which darkened the bright spring days of most youngsters years ago, is almost unknown to the present generation. It was supposed to do wonders for your insides; killed blood germs (any self-respecting germ curled up and died at the first whiff of it), and counteracted the deadening effect of a menu of dry beans, side meat, corn meal mush, buckwheat cakes, potatoes and rice, throughout the winter.

But that was just one of the many "tonics" to which one was subjected. There was sassafras

MAYOR TO PICK FIVE-MAN CITY HOUSING BOARD

Hunter Appointed at 'Clinic' To Name Committee to Make Preliminary Survey.

FIRST STEP IN PROGRAM

Federal Engineer Says Report To State Must Cite Need Of Slum Clearance Here.

BULLETIN

Charles W. Conklin, 20 Dawson avenue, an architect, was selected at noon today by Mayor Claude M. Hunter as the first member of a five-man committee to be appointed to conduct a slum clearance survey here.

Hastening to put underway a slum clearance project in Mansfield, Mayor Claude M. Hunter today was to name a five-man committee to conduct a preliminary survey of housing conditions here and present to the state housing board evidence that Mansfield has a definite need for a share of the $65,000,000 allocated to Ohio for that purpose.

The mayor was selected by a group of representative citizens at a housing clinic sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce last night, to make the necessary appointments.

The group of 25 Mansfield businessmen voted unanimously in choosing Hunter to make the selections after they had heard a talk on slum clearance by L. A. Bonsteil of Washington, D. C., consulting engineer for the department of agriculture, representing the National Association of Housing officials.

Names Committee Today.

Hunter told the group he would name a committee within 24 hours He said this morning that he had not yet been able to select the committee, but hoped to have the job done by evening.

Action by the group was taken after Bonsteil had urged them to "get going" and appoint a citizen committee to make the preliminary survey.

"My suggestion is that action be taken tonight in order to get the program moving," Bonsteil said. "The preliminary survey need not be a comprehensive report but just a statement to the state board to the fact that a slum clearance project is necessary in Mansfield."

Outlines Procedure.

Bonsteil's suggestion was made at the conclusion of a talk in which he outlined the procedure in conducting a slum clearance program.

"The purpose of the program is to destroy unfit living quarters and to build homes for those in

OXFORD OARSMEN BEAT CAMBRIDGE

Win 90th Annual Boat Race For 2nd Consecutive Victory.

LONDON—(AP)—Oxford's brawny oarsmen today won the 90th annual boat race from Cambridge.

The dark blues took the lead at the outset, held off a determined challenge by Cambridge in the middle half of the four and a quarter mile grind and then drew away to win by two lengths.

It was Oxford's second consecutive victory after 13 consecutive defeats and the dark blue's 42nd triumph since the classic was inaugurated in 1829. Cambridge has won 47 races and one, in 1877, wound up in a dead heat.

ROOSEVELT OK'S COMPROMISE TO ESCAPE DEFEAT

Tells House Leaders To Make Changes In Measure Following Defeat of Administration In Test Vote; Two Amendments Planned

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt capitulated today in the furious battle over his government reorganization bill.

With the president's approval, given by telephone as he prepared to leave his Warm Springs, Ga., retreat to return to the capital, Democratic leaders in the house agreed to propose compromise amendments to the measure.

The compromise, it was admitted freely, was decided on to avert a crushing defeat facing the administration.

The president talked to the leaders who went into secret conference just before debate was to be resumed in the house.

The proposed compromise amendments, which are slated to be announced to the house, were said to be:

1. Inclusion of provision permitting congress, by concurrent resolution and thus by majority vote, to set aside reorganization order of the president.

2. Eliminate duties of proposed new secretary of public welfare to co-ordinate and promote cause of education in the nation, as a means of reassuring those fearing the bill lead to federal control of public education.

With these changes, Democratic leaders hoped to regain control of the huge Democratic majority, which has been torn asunder in the bitter controversy over the far-reaching reorganization measure.

All efforts to jam the bill through to passage tonight were abandoned, with the result that the battle may continue all next week.

Opposition Confident.

As the house reconvened, after refusing last night to bow to the demand of administration leaders that debate be closed, opposition leaders were confident that they could win their fight.

Spectators thronged the corridors of the house wing of the capitol.

Galleries soon were jammed to overflowing. The flood of letters protesting against the legislation, though somewhat abated, continued in extraordinary volume. Telegraph companies estimated that 105,000 telegrams, mostly in protest, were received yesterday, and uncounted thousands more today.

Members, however, reported that their letter mail protests were increasing as the full portent of the importance of the reorganization legislation sank into the minds of the rank and file of voters throughout the country.

At the press conference, Speak-

1938 FUND GOAL SET AT $53,950

Committee Cuts $1,521 Off Last Year's Budget; All But One Agency Affected.

Mansfield will be asked to contribute $53,950 to its Community Fund next month when the annual campaign is held, which is $1,521 less than the 1937 budget, and more than $4,000 under the amount contributed last year.

The budget committee set up a tentative budget last night for each agency and a goal for the campaign. The committee is comprised of H. W. Arlin, chairman, A. C. Rhoads, A. E. Courtney, William Switzer, Harold Bruce, R. M. Calene, A. L. Allen, P. M. Wooden, Jesse Beer, V. H. Lodde, Mrs. E. R. Hartman and Mrs. H. L. Ackerman.

All of the 10 participating agencies were given small reductions except the Milk Fund, which received a 50 per cent increase, and the Y. M. C. A., which voluntarily pared its budget before submitting it to the committee. One new agency, the Girl Scouts, which was admitted to the Fund several weeks ago, was provided for in the budget.

Mansfield General hospital asked for $23,000 this year, but was allowed $6,100, which was $460 below its 1937 allocation. Dr. A. O.

YES, IT'S SNOW

Weatherman Not Fooling With Mercury Down to 32.

Yes, that stuff that came out of the sky around noon today was snow—and no April fooling.

And if you looked at the thermometer around 10:30 and it said 32—which is just freezing that wasn't any April fooling either.

Because there were snow flurries this morning, and it was very, very chilly—in fact, it was cold. As a matter of fact, the mercury dropped from a high of 46 yesterday to a low of 30 during the night, climbing only two degrees by mid-morning, according to Otto Sprunger, weather observer.

The forecast—look out for a bit of frost tonight, but expect fair and warmer weather tomorrow.

Drop In Sales Tax Receipts To Cost County $42,000

Because of a marked drop in sales tax receipts so far this year, Richland county will receive $42,000 less in state sales tax funds for operating expenses in 1938 than was predicted at the first of the year, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe had been informed today.

The estimate, released by the state tax commission, shows a reduction from $135,000 to $93,000 in allocations the county's sub-divisions will receive from the state.

Since the local governments have set up their budgets on the basis of the $135,000 figure, some of them may have difficulty meeting their operating costs before the end of the year, Wolfe said.

Although sales tax collections in Richland county increased from $6,543 during the second week of March to $8,169 the following week, receipts for the first 10 weeks of 1938 are $31,800 under the figure for the same period last year, the state treasurer's report shows.

Schools, old age pensions and relief funds, which share in sales tax distributions, also are expected to suffer as a result of the decrease in collections, it was said.

A Farmer's Diary

APRIL 1

TODAY I went to see a hermit, who lives, with his dog and two cats, in a hollow not far off. To reach his ramshackle, gray shell of a house, one must traverse a long lane and cross the creek on a trembly old foot bridge.

Beside the stream, directly in front of the old man's dwelling, is an artesian well, where even in driest weather, a stream of cold water as large in diameter as a man's thumb, flows from a rusty pipe.

The spile has a hole in the end and another in the top, so that by inserting a finger in the outer opening, the water gushes in a bubbling fountain from the other one. Here I stopped to drink.

From the spile, the water drips into a huge hogshead and overflows into a small pool, where lush watercress grows almost the year round. I noticed this was surrounded by a close woven fence.

A black and white fox terrier came round the corner and I spoke to him. Then, with a genial "Hi there!" my hermit neighbor himself came into view.

He is a stooped, gnomelike man who always reminds me of that old man of the mountain, with whom Rip Van Winkle became involved. He is gnarled and wrinkled, yet full of motion and ingenuity. Like that friend of Rips, too, he is fond of the contents of the wicked flagon.

"Hello," I said. "What made you fence in your watercress?"

"The mushrats wuz eatin' it. Some o' the neighbor boys caught most of 'em now, tho, with their steeltraps."

I pointed to another plot along the bank, where signs of recent labor were apparent. "Planted your garden, didn't you?"

"Yeah—a few onions and radishes and some lettuce and peas. Don't reckon it'll get very cold here in this valley no more this spring."

"Not many folks have things to suit them as well as you," I told him,—and meant it.

For this hermit soul fits his quiet valley. Children and animals are his friends. He has no enemies. He belongs to the simple life . . . is part of the sunshine and rain, the green fields, the rugged hillside, the playful stream, the good earth itself.

operations were aided by bright sunny weather.

Persistent government resistance in the Lerida sector forced the insurgents to circle the besieged city, regarded as the gateway to Barcelona, and slowly fight their way through its defenses.

The insurgents said they captured a number of fortified defense positions around Lerida, forcing government militiamen to retire before machine gun fire. The insurgent advance was supported by airplane strafing of government lines.

Gen. Juan Yague's Moors occupied the heights controlling the battered and scorched town from the west and south and awaited only the completion of an encircling operation before attempting to enter the provincial capital.

The capture yesterday of Valderrobres, at the eastern extremity of Teruel province, put the insurgents within 12 miles of the Mediterranen plains and gave them control of roads leading northeast to Gandesa.

Rail Executive, Native of Galion, Visits Home Town

GALION — Tom Schumacher, former Galion man who returned to his home town here Friday morning for a brief visit with his sister, Mrs. Adam Beach, left this afternoon to return to New York City, his home.

Schumacher, who is now chairman of the executive committee and a trustee of the Western Pacific Railroad company, with offices at 37 Wall Street, New York, spent his boyhood days in Galion and began his railroad work here as clerk in the Big Four freight offices.

It has been nearly 50 years since he left Galion. He had last visited here 13 years ago when he retired as president of the El Paso and Southwestern railroad. For the past 30 years he has been located in New York.

When he arrived in Galion at 7:40 a. m. Friday he was serenaded by Chapin's band of Cleveland. A group of his New York friends had learned of his coming to Galion, and made plans to have the band reach Galion before Schumacher's arrival. Schumacher did not learn until afterward that the band was playing in his honor.

Richland Farmer Fined $100 For Selling Hard Cider

Pleading guilty in common pleas court yesterday afternoon to a charge of selling intoxicants without a permit, Frank Peters, 52, Springfield township orchardist, was fined $100 by Judge C. H. Huston.

Arrested by state liquor officers, Peters admitted selling hard cider at his farm where officers found 450 barrels.

Robert Gorman, Coshocton, investigator for the state liquor department, testified he had made three purchases of the cider at the Peters farm in the past three weeks. One analysis of the cider, he said, showed a 7.6 per cent alcoholic content.

Peters' arrest followed a series of complaints of sale of the cider in unlimited quantities at his farm. Sheriff E. P. Long, who worked with the liquor agents on the case, said boys of high school age had told him they purchased cider from Peters.

Liquor agents told Peters he would have to obtain an "A" liquor permit from the state if he continues to sell his cider and that the cider must be sealed in regulation containers with labels indicating the alcoholic content.

GONE ARE DAYS OF OLD REMEDY

Molasses and Sulphur, Once Spring Tonic, Extinct as Dodo, Pharmacists Say.

tea (it's still popular) for "blood thinning"; cream of tartar for something-or-other; and then there was—heaven help the kids—asafetida. It is a brownish gum which was concealed in a little sack and worn on a string around the neck. It's purposes was to keep germs away. And you can bet your life it was effective. Not only germs but all living things. The dictionary says it's a "fetid sap". You can lock up "fetid" while you're at it.

But, believe it or not, asafetida is still much in demand, and kids still wear it concealed about their person, according to one Mansfield pharmacist.

"There are a lot of people who still believe in the power of asafetida to keep germs away. And we still sell a lot of spring tonics, which, if they aren't sulphur and molasses, have the same effect. Sarsaparilla is a favorite, and a sulphur and cream of tartar mixture is another. Then there are all kinds of pattent medicines, labeled tonics, which are sold in quantities."

"But do you actually sell much of that sort of thing in the spring?" we asked. He went to his files and brought out a statement from just one company manufacturing a "spring tonic", covering the past 60 days. The bill, —wholesale prices—was for approximately $250.

But the great majority of parents today go on the assumption, as Mr. Gibson points out, that the change in food styles, which, due to improved transportation and refrigeratin facilities, make it possible to have summer foods throughout the winter months, make a spring "blood tonic" unnecessary.

Woman Feels Talk Slanderous

By VIRGINIA LEE

"Give a dog a bad name and hang him." That is an old saying and it is true that once a person has acquired a bad name, deservedly or not, it is hard to get rid of it. Even when the majority are convinced that the name is undeserved, or have forgotten it, there will be a few that will remember and believe it.

Mrs. C. E.'s letter is far too long to print here, although she wishes I would put as much of it as possible in the column so that the people who have slandered her can see it and realize that she is innocent of any wrong.

Here are the facts of the case as written for me: Mrs. C. E. is a middleaged woman but has only been married for about two years. Before her marriage she lived in the country and had a male friend whose initials were J. S. This man's mother grew very fond of Mrs. C. E., and frequently asked her to visit her.

Now after Mrs. C. E. stopped going with J. S., met her husband and married, she lived in the same town with this man and his mother. Her husband was very jealous of her old boy friend and told her she was not to go to his mother's house to visit her. J. S.'s mother invited her several times and was very much hurt when she didn't accept, so at last she did go to see her, her husband heard of it and they had a violent quarrel.

Some time after this Mrs. C. E. noticed that people who had formerly been very friendly to her were cold; groups of young men who congregated together would say something intended for an insult as she passed. Even at Sunday school a young woman called after her, and she felt that she had acquired a bad name. Some friends stood by her, but many were unfriendly.

J. S. and his mother have moved away, and she no longer sees them. She has been absolutely true to her husband, she declares, and deeply feels the injustice of the coolness and unkind remarks. She wants those who gave her the bad name to know how she feels about it. Some of those who had been unfriendly have grown less indifferent, but there are still some who seem to think she did something she shouldn't.

You have outlived the scandal, if there was any, Mrs. C. E., and if I were you I would not stay away from public gatherings. You are secure in the knowledge that you never have done anything wrong. I presume it would have been wiser to have explained to J. S.'s mother that your husband was uncontrolably jealous of her son and that for that reason you thought it better not to visit her. That would have saved all the trouble. However, I do not blame you for not "obeying" him. After all, you have a right to choose your own friends or to keep up old friendships, and he should have trusted you. I cannot understand how he could expect you to "obey" him as if you were a child and he your father.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, April 3.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds auguries of very sudden, surprising and probably mysterious events. While mystical and religious matters, suddenly precipitated, may have a rather radical effect on sabbath calm. Peculiar, intriguing or unexplainable situations may arise, causing excitement, sudden moves, much perplexity and some financial hazards.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of sudden and surprising events, with much excitement, commotion, intrigue and peculiar situations to be sagaciously and cautiously managed. Money it at stake, but these singular or subtle matters may be turned to profit by tact, vigilance and shrewdness.

A child born on this day may have very versatile talents, with forces and faculties out of the ordinary. However, its subtlety, shrewdness and peculiarities may not always result in financial success.

For Monday, April 4.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for a very interesting and eventful day, with the mind particularly stimulated to creative and progressive insight and originality. These may incite unexpected change, adventure or inventive achievements of unusual order, but all may win the support of elders or established organizations, although employment seems at cross purposes.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a very active and progressive year in which their own original talents or creative genius figure prominently. These may enlist the support of elders or old institutions and cause some important changes, but employment itself may offer certain anxieties.

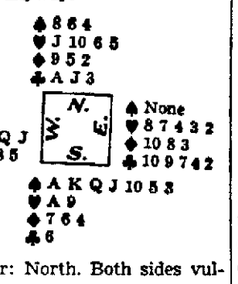
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

BEWARE THE SQUEEZE

WHEN you hold all the strength that is out against a pre-emptive bid, think carefully before you make a penalty double. Realize that the declarer has a very long trump suit which he is going to run, and that you may have trouble to pick the right discards. Even if you discard perfectly, he still may squeeze you and make his contract anyway.



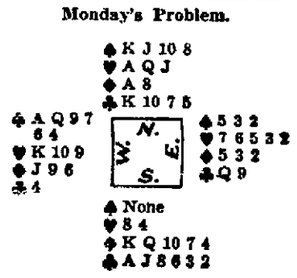
(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

South made a third hand bid of 4-Spades on this deal, and West doubled. With so many honor cards, but lacking any long suit, West felt that was about the only action he could take.

He led the diamond K, and followed with two more rounds of the suit. A switch was now made to the heart K, which the declarer won with the A. South immediately started to lead his seven spades, and on the eleventh trick West was obliged to give up his heart Q or unblock his club K. It mattered not which he did, for South was able to cash the remaining tricks, as the club A furnished the entry to dummy to cash either the heart J, in the event the Q was given up by West, or the A and J of clubs, provided the club K was unblocked.

Poor West felt cheated to think his store of honors proved of no value to him. A shot at 5-Clubs would even have been penalized one trick, as North would have cashed two clubs and the heart A would no doubt have been the setting trick.

Monday's Problem.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What is the correct bidding on this deal?

If you have been unsuccessful in growing delphinium from seeds try soaking seeds for four or five days before planting in a piece of damp cheese cloth, being careful not to let cloth get dry. Seeds treated in this way will come up in a week after they are planted.

Writings and possessions should flourish.

A child born on this day may be unusually versatile and original in its mentality, having sound judgment as well as much advanced thinking of a creative nature. It may win the support of its elders but not its employers, although it may have much social and friendly popularity.

When tablecloths wear thin in the center, cut up the outside into 12 or 16-inch squares and hemstitch them. These make napkins which will wear for some time.

Cultivate Child's Beauty

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

ARE YOU raising your baby daughter to be a movie star? Probably not. But you certainly want her to grow up to be a beautiful girl. And you just can't leave this to chance. Your child's looks are in your hands until she gets beyond adolescence, so if you don't want an ugly ducking, then do your share.

Of course your baby is the most beautiful baby in the world, but turn off the adoring mother act for a minute, so she will be a lovely girl come 16 years from now. First of all, see that her ears lie flat to her head. Tape her ears down with adhesive tape. Give her smooth baby caps that will hold her ears close to her head. Then she will never be able to accuse you later on.

Another thing that should be taken care of almost immediately is molding her mouth. Don't let her suck a pacifier or her finger. It will make her lips ugly and may even make her have buckteeth. And see that she has proper dental care even with her first teeth. Decayed teeth are bound to make bad chewing habits that will last throughout her life.

The most important thing you can do for her teeth is to give her a diet that is rich in protective foods, that is, the foods abundant in vitamins and minerals. All the brushing in the world will not save little teeth unless the diet is right. We don't mean that you shouldn't teach baby to clean her teeth. That's very important, and see that she does it morning and night.

Also see that her hair is clean. Give it a shampoo when necessary and a thorough brushing every day. As she gets older train her to brush her hair regularly, for as the years go by she will be rewarded many times for her trouble.

Look to Her Feet.

Look to her feet, too. Her shoes should be properly fitted so that she will not suffer from sore, tired feet later on. See that she places her feet parallel and straight ahead in an easy natural manner. And when school days come get her in the habit of shifting her books from one arm to the other so that there will be no undue strain on the right arm and shoulder.

A child's complexion will almost take care of itself if she has the proper diet and is not constipated. Naturally she must keep her face clean, but good old soap and water is about the best thing for the young one's skin. Don't let her suffer from chapped lips, hands, elbows and knees. A little pomade in her lips will keep them soft, and hand cream on rough hands, knees and elbows will save her a lot of pain and make her skin smooth and fine textured.

These little attentions in her formative years will develop into beauty habits later on, and you'll never have a wall flower on your hands.

Try mixing ginger cookies with cold coffee instead of water.

If you live so close to the highway that passersby can look into your home, try painting the screen doors with a very thin coat of white paint and you can look out, but people passing cannot see into your living room.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I STARTED so violently at hearing in the next booth the voice of the drunken woman who had demanded to talk to Dicky over the telephone at the hotel, that Mary, with an alarmed face, stretched out her hand and touched mine warningly, putting her other finger hastily to her lips. Then, with incredible rapidity, she produced a pencil and a bit of paper from her purse and scribbled something upon it, pushing it over to me as she finished.

"Don't speak!" she had written. "They'll know your voice. The waiter is coming. Let me order!"

I read the message with only a fraction of my attention, nodding a mechanical assent to Mary. All my faculties were fused in one—that of hearing. I strained my ears to hear the voice which should answer the woman's attack, fearing fatalistically that it would be familiar to me. But when it came, though the voice was that of my husband, its accents were so changed, so raucous, so brutal—there was no other word for it—that if I had not been expecting to hear him speaking in reply to the woman's addressing him as "Dicky-bird," I never should have recognized his voice.

Accepts Her Dare.

"Will you shut up and listen to what I have to say, or shall I send the waiter for the nearest policeman?"

There was an instant's dead silence; then the woman spoke again, and her voice sent a shiver down my spine, it was so like the hiss of a serpent.

"You wouldn't dare!" she spat out, but there was a nuance of fear in the venomous inflections.

"Don't I?" My husband's tone was deadly, if muted, and I knew that only for our being next to the partition we should have heard no word of the colloquy. Then there was the noise of a chair being pushed back, and then almost instantly the hushed cry of the woman.

"Don't! You win, this time. But not on the main thing. Now, what do you want?"

Dicky's reply was prompt.

"I'll tell you what I don't want. You're not to speak again except in answer to my questions concerning the menu until I've ordered and we're well into our dinner. Then I'll listen to you, as I promised, if you'll keep your voice down."

"Like your lady wife, I suppose." The words sounded as if they were torn from her throat. "I owe her a knifing for the way she highhatted me over the telephone last night."

Threatens Woman.

"If you mention her again"—Dicky's voice was equal to hers in venom, but far more deadly in purpose—"either here or in any other place you won't need a policeman. He'll be what I'll draw—gladly—and you won't be a pretty sight."

"Sorry," she stammered, cowed, at least for the moment. "I didn't mean to say that."

"See that you don't repeat it." Dicky responded coldly, and there was such menace in his voice that in spite of myself I shivered as if I were the woman on the other side of the screen.

The restraurant had been almost filled when we entered, and the service was slightly delayed. But at that moment the waiter came up for our order, and a new cause for panic gripped me by the throat. Dicky's vice was audible to us and recognizable. He would recognize Mary's at once, and know that I was with her, for he had planned with me the precautions with which we were safeguarding his beloved young niece.

THEATER

THERE are more "Southern plantations" in Hollywood right now than there were in the south before the Civil war. Every studio is making a picture about a spoiled southern beauty of the war and pre-war days. Strangely enough, the only studio doing nothing about it is the Selznick which owns the story that started the deluge — "Gone With the Wind." One of the latest of these stories is "The Toy Wife," with Luise Rainer as the tempestuous Louisiana belle of the 1850 period —identical with the Bette Davis "Jezebel"—and in case you're wondering how that broad accent of Luise's fits into an American story, it is accounted for by the fact that the Louisiana belle spent most of her life in France up until the time of the story.

"Mad About Music."

Reviewers who are accustomed to growing ecstatic over Deanna Durbin's pictures, are practically wordless at her third and current vehicles, "Mad About Music." The tare child, still in her teens, combines beauty with what many consider the best feminine singing voice in pictures, and a splendid dramatic talent. Her producers wisely give her singing numbers as good a story as though there were no music in it. "Mad About Music" is the story of a lonely little girl at a private school in Switzerland who invents a father, and when pressed to produce him, she grabs the first attractive man who steps off the train. It turns out to be Herbert Marshall and a very nice and understanding "father" he is. Gail Patrick and Arthur Treacher are cast in major roles. The picture will be the Ohio attraction next week opening with a midnight matinee today.

"Bringing Up Baby."

Katharine Hepburn lays aside her aloofness and dignity with one gay gesture of abandon in "Bringing Up Baby," the comedy which the Madison offers the first four days of the week. With Cary Grant as her co-star, La Hepburn follows up the advantages gained in "Stage Door" and makes another impressive bid for public approval in this near-slap stick comedy which is pretty well tied up with a tame leopard, a professor of zoology, a spoiled heiress and the bones of a dinosaur. The hitherto unapproachable Miss Hepburn unbends so far as to lose an important part of her apparel at a party, gets into jail, climbs up on a roof after the leopard, mauls the professor and deliberately stops his marriage to another girl. Charlie Ruggles, Mae Robson and Walter Catlett contribute to the comedy.

"He Couldn't Say No."

Frank McHugh lives up to his reputation for goofiness in "He Couldn't Say No," Majestic theater picture for Sunday and Monday, when he spent his entire savings for a half nude marble statue at an auction. But it turns out to be a rather smart investment when several groups start bidding on the statue, and even smarter when he meets the original of the statue, the lovely daughter of a senator. Jane Wyman, newcomer who is being seen in a lot of pictures, and Cora Witherspoon, are in the cast. Shown with this picture is a Western, "Forbidden Valley" with a group of younger players, among them Noah Beery, jr., and Frances Robinson. Fred Kohler, sr., one of the old established villains of the screen, does the dirty work.

"Big City."

Those two capable players, Spencer Tracy and Luise Rainer, are teamed in "Big City," due at the Ritz tomorrow. Directed by Frank Borzage, it tells a dramatic and emotional story of an independent cab driver in New York who is happily married to Anna, a young Roumanian girl. A taxi feud breaks out and their happiness is rudely torn from them, when Anna is arrested as an undesirable alien and threatened with deportation shortly before her child is expected. There is the usual type of Tracy down-to-earthness in the action and Rainer adds appeal and human interest. A Wheeler and Woolsey comedy, "High Flyers," with peppery Lupe Velez provides contrast to the bill by way of comedy.

HOT FRANKFURTER AND POTATO SALAD CASSEROLE—Six cups thinly sliced cooked potatoes, two and one-fourth teaspoons salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-half cup salad or olive oil, one-fourth cup vinegar, one No. 2 can (two and one-half cups) string beans, one-fourth cup sliced onions, six frankfurters. Combine the potatoes, salt, pepper, oil and vinegar. Arrange the drained string beans in the bottom of a two-quart covered casserole. Over them arrange the potato salad in alternate layers with the onions and sliced frankfurters. (Cook the latter for five minutes before using.) Cover and bake in a moderately hot oven of 400 degrees F. for 35 to 40 minutes. Serves six: To serve two or three make half this recipe.

Stuffings.

The kind of stuffing to use with meats depends on personal preference. With pork, it is a good idea to choose one which is not too rich, letting the pork itself supply the delicious flavor. For this reason, an apple stuffing is a favorite, because the apples lend the right amount of tart to make the whole dish enjoyed. With veal, a meat which contains little fat, the richer dressings may be used.

Interest Grows in Relays

City Beginning to Realize Importance of Trackfest Billed April 23.

By OSCAR RUHL
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

MANSFIELD will again become the mecca of the scholastic track world three weeks from today when the 12th edition of the Relays is staged at Stadium field.

Harry E. Mehock, who is the director of the gigantic schoolboy track and field carnival, anticipates a record turnout, not only in the way of entries, either.

Mansfield is gradually beginning to realize the importance of the thin-clad circus which has become as much of a part of the city as Central park, and the gate should benefit this year

While it is admitted that the track sport is not as interesting from a spectators' standpoint as the majority of other games, Mansfield is learning to appreciate the efforts of the runners, jumpers and throwers.

The attendance at the Relays has grown steadily, and this year the event should attract a record-breaking throng, providing the weatherman cooperates

The committee assisting Mehock in the promotion of the Relays has instituted a plan whereby free tickets are given to contributors to the fund, and it should help to swell the attendance.

These tickets go into the hands of more persons than you probably realize, and the attendance cannot fail to break existing records if they are used and the customary number of paid admissions are present.

Entries to Threaten 100-School Mark.

ENTRIES for the carnival are not expected for another week or two, but Mehock appears assured of a large field.

More schools have corresponded with Mehock this year in search of information regarding the Relays than any other time in the 12-year history of the event. Mehock regards this as an encouraging sign.

The out-of-state entry is certain to be bolstered this year, and Mehock expects more Ohio schools to be represented Saturday, April 23.

The enry may not reach the 100-school mark, but it won't be far from that figure when the deadline is reached, you can bet.

Defending Champs Fail

CHICAGO —(AP)— If the 1938 American Bowling congress championship figures are to be record highs, as was generally predicted before the firing began the high records had better begin to appear soon.

Last night the defending team champions the Krakow Furniture company, Detroit abdicated on a 2722 count. Thus another favored contender joined the group which included Chicago's Monarch Beers (2915), Chicago's Mineralities, (2950), and Milwaukee's Heil Quality Products (2926)

Three changes in standings were made yesterday Carroll Davis, Milwaukee, scoring 743 in the team event, climbed into second place in the all-events division with 1944 Gil Zunker of the Milwaukee Heils bowled 1923 for seventh while Johnny Mihlsimmer, also of Milwaukee opening with a stellar 279 totaled 686 to move in with the individual leaders

Thomas Crumbles Under Louis Blows

Battered Senseless by Vicious Assault in Fifth Before Meager Crowd.

By STEVE SNIDER

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis temporarily laid away his fistic bombs today after a fifth round knockout of Harry Thomas and began to dream of the distant June night when he hopes to avenge his crushing defeat by Max Schmeling.

Thomas, an awkward but rugged heavyweight from a Minnesota farm, had all the heart of a Schmeling but the boxing ability wasn't there.

Down Many Times.

Stung by the fury of the challenger's constant, dangerous flailing, Louis stunned Thomas with a left hook behind the ear at the end of the third round, dressed him for the kill by flooring him four times in the fourth round and finally ended it with two left hooks after another knockdown in the fifth

The end came after two minutes, 50 seconds of the fifth round Thomas, battered senseless by the vicious assault, collapsed as Louis calmly drew back his left fist to strike again Then Referee Davey Miller counted Thomas out for the first time in his career of 80 fights

The fight was just what Louis wanted—a good, tough battle before he meets Schmeling a second time on June 22.

"Now I know I can beat Schmeling," Louis said after the bout.

Thomas, who was stopped in the eighth round by Schmeling, said, "I'll bet my purse tonight that Joe will knock the German out."

True to his word, Thomas went after the Bomber as he insisted he would—as if Joe were just another fighter. He sparred evenly throughout the first round and landed the most severe blows although he took more by volume in return as Louis contented himself with flicking his straight left into Harry's defenseless face

In the second, any advantage was Harry's. He flung his roundhouse rights and lefts at Louis' chin but still the Bomber jabbed cautiously and withdrew from range when Thomas grew too bold.

Except for the last 50 seconds, the third round was the best of the fight for Thomas. The 10.468 fans howled as the challenger forced Louis to cover up time after time under a heavy rain of blows.

But near the end Louis stepped up his pace He lashed suddenly at Thomas with a left hook the challenger never saw. It landed behind Harry's right ear and spun him around in his own corner.

Beginning of End.

It was the beginning of the end of Thomas No matter how hard he was hit in the remaining rounds —he went down for counts of nine, three, seven and nine before the end of the fourth round—he staggered back to his feet and raced at Louis with both hands flying.

Louis floored him again with a right to the point of the chin for a count of eight in the fifth and ended it with his two left hooks near the end of the round.

PROMOTES MAX BAER

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The National Boxing association promoted Max Baer to third place today in its quarterly rating of heavyweightweight boxers Max Schmeling was rated No 1 challenger.

Solters Signs, Indians Start Trek North

Outfielder to Join Tribe In Austin, Tex., Monday.

LAKE CHARLES, La. —(U.P.)— The Cleveland Indians joined force with Bill Terry's National league champions, the New York Giants, here today for the start of a long exhibition tour.

The clubs tangled here today and tomorrow move to Texas for contests that will be played at Houston, Austin, Bryan and Longview. Then follows a hop back into Lousiana for engagements at Alexander and Monroe.

Reunite at Paducah.

Following the contest at Monroe the teams will separate for two days before reuniting at Paducah, Ky.

From Paducah the teams go to Owensboro, Ky.; Frankfort, Ky.; Charleston and Weirton, W Va., and Cleveland The last two games of the series will be played in the Indians home port on April 16 and 17

The Indians and Giants have already played four games Cleveland was the victor in the initial engagement and then dropped the next three.

The current year makes the fifth successive season the Indians and Giants have barnstormed north together.

As the Indians broke camp they left Jeff Heath, a fine looking young outfield prospect, at New Orleans Heath is suffering from a stomach disorder and was left behind for medical treatment.

Signs For $11,500?

To offset the temporary loss of Heath, Manager Oscar Vitt received news that outfielder Julius Solters had deserted the holdout ranks and signed for the coming season

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but it was believed Solters will receive $11,500. He will join the team Monday at Austin, Tex.

Tygermen Get $75 In Split

Cagers, Coach Also to Receive Individual Trophies.

In addition to expenses and an earlier slice of the gate receipts, Mansfield and the 31 other state high school basketball finalists have been voted additional cuts of a "melon" ranging from $75 to $300. A $4,500 bonus was split between the teams which advanced to the state tourney by the Ohio High School Athletic association last night in Columbus.

Mansfield and the other schools which were eliminated in the first games will receive $75. Teams eliminated in the second round were voted $150, with the semi-final losers receiving $225 and the four finalists getting $300 apiece.

In addition to the bonus awards each individual competitor, and the coach, in the state meet will receive an eight-inch trophy The trophies have a bakelite base and a gold plated figure of a basketball player.

The state tourney, which drew 30 036 fans to break the record of 25,335 set the year before, saw $16,824 59 pour into the register as compared with the previous "high" of $11 888 56 Added to the district tournament figures, a total of 430 069 customers saw elimination games this year, the receipts being $143 812 37 — the greatest in history

Apostoli Again At Steele's Heels

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Fred Apostoli was at the heels of Freddie Steele again today, seeking a shot at his middleweight crown. Apostoli returned to the titular picture with an unanimous 15-round decision over Glenn Lee of Edison, Neb., last night.

There was little of the savagery that featured their first meeting on Feb. 4 to the engagement last night. Apostoli picked his spots, threw his punches and stepped back out of danger.

The 20th Century Sporting club announced gross receipts as $43,496.86, the paid attendance was 15,218 fans.

Golfing Days Are Here Again! Courses Ready for Heavy Play

GOLFING days are here again! The skies are blue . . . but need you be told anymore?

It's spring. The weather's perfect . . . and the enthusiasm's high. It looks like another big year for the shot-makers.

While the courses are still somewhat soggy from recent rains, play is permissible on two of the layouts, and there is every indication that the lots will be packed this week-end if the weather does not interfere.

The Westbrook Country club opened a week ago. Art Fovargue's Coolridge club will be ready this week-end.

The Possum Run club, of course, remains closed, and just when it will be re-opened depends on what becomes of the suit recently filed by the owner of the property against the lessees for back rental.

Pro Jock Collins of Westbrook announces changes in the personnel of his staff. Steve Schemine, Jock's assistant for several years, has left the club to become head pro at the York Temple course near Columbus.

His place as a caddy master has been assumed by Vincent Tipuli, who has been employed at the pro's shop in various capacity for several seasons.

Sylvester Klishinski, another well-known figure around Westbrook, has returned to assist Collins.

The personnel at Coolridge will remain unchanged, with Fovargue being assisted by his son, Art, jr.

Golfers Reminisce As Rain Halts Play

Tell Fancy Tales In Clubhouse After Downpour Stops Play In Masters Tourney.

By HENRY McLEMORE

AUGUSTA, Ga —(U.P.)—The rain came down in great gray sheets to run in rivers across the greens and fairways. Only Noah could have played 18 holes of golf under such conditions so the drenched committee called off the first round of the Masters tournament and everyone went upstairs to the snug locker room of the clubhouse.

As entertainment the peerless Bobby Jones told his caddy story to end all caddy stories, the one about the time he was playing in a foursome in North Carolina and his caddy was a weather beaten old mountaineer with a scraggly beard.

When Bob didn't shoot so well on the first nine his caddy told him he had better shoot a little better coming home because he had bet a dollar on Jones and wasn't in any mood to lose it.

"I had a three-foot putt on the 18th for a win," Jones related, "and as I lined it up my caddy, who was holding the flag, never took his eyes off me. I fiddled around about five minutes and finally missed it.

"My caddy gave me one look of disgust, whacked me over the back with the pole, yelled 'You yellow old scoundrel, you,' and started running. I haven't seen him since."

THEN Felix Serafin tried to explain, but couldn't how he had played the first nine in 33, despite the torrential rain and had started back in 4-3, one under par. He didn't mind the committee calling the round off, however; said that even a 65 wouldn't have compensated for death by drowning

The "forgotten man," Sam Parks, jr, sat alone in a corner cleaning the spikes of his shoes National open champion two years ago, Parks sold for $25 in the auction pool. Sam came to the tourney alone, practiced alone, rooms and eats alone.

Billy Burke was one of the few players who regretted the postponement.

"I loved those water-covered greens," Burke said. "It gave me a chance against those hot putters. I just used my niblick and chipped straight toward the deepest part. Every once in a while the cup was there and down I went. That's better than I do when it's dry."

Somebody bet that Frank Strafaci, the little Brooklyn boy who was not named on the Walker Cup team for some reason or another, would finish better than Charley Yates, Chuck Kocsis, Bud Ward and Tommy Tailer, who are down here and who were named on the squad. And so on into the night.

Hi-Speed Puts Team In Field

Oil Club Candidates to Hold First Drill Sunday.

The Mansfield Hi-Speed semi-pro baseball club will begin to take definite form Sunday. Initial try-outs for posisions on the club will be staged at Empire field at 10 a. m

The workout will give Manager Brownie Corcoran an opportunity to look over the talent available for the coming season.

Battling for positions in the outfield will be the Herrick twins, Clarence and Earl, John Schuster, Pete Metz and Ed Harmon. On call for infield duty at present are Johnny Linta, John Schmidt, Jim Wallace and Corcoran, who is expected to hold down the keystone position.

Pitchers already signed are Petey Beer and Lefty Deeds. Another flinger who will display his talent Sunday is Fossnight of Marietta.

by Davis J. Walsh

NEW YORK—(INS)—Out of the fullness of his diverse experience, Lawson Robertson, head coach of the last four American teams, has come up with an Olympic idea that's so sound that it probably won't even get a hearing. He, in fact, has two ideas, but the second isn't so pleasant It's that the delayed date at Tokyo in 1940 and the probable loss of our college men means "almost certain defeat for America."

The other is for the International Olympic federation to change its credo and by-laws to such purpose that Athens, Greece, will be made the permanent site of the games. It's a little radical for a man in public life, but the fellow makes sense.

Athens was the scene of the original Olympics in the long ago and of their modern revival in 1896. Its central location in relation to both hemispheres would make for convenience, for economy in a permanent stadium and for fairness in climatic parity. Best of all, staid, old Athens undoubtedly would provide a site in which this noble experiment in sportsmanship can be conducted without fear of some non-combatant being mistakenly shot in the rompers by one bellicose faction or another, who invariably mean well but are a little off in their target practice.

Ilaki and Routt will try conclusions on the same card that features a match between Joe Magyar, Hungarian idol, and Eddie Pope of Rocky Mount, N. C.

Favorites Advance In Y Cagefest

Jimmy's Lunches, Lakewood Merchants Win to Gain Semi-Finals In A Division.

By CHARLES MARTIN

JIMMY'S LUNCHES and Lakewood Merchants advanced to the semi-finals in the Class A division of the Gold Medal tournament last night on the Y. M. C. A. hardwood before a small but enthusiastic crowd.

The Lunchmen, pre-tourney favorites, reached the semi-final bracket by defeating the Galion Quality Coals, 32 to 23, while the Merchants, paced by Ken Noble, erstwhile Baldwin-Wallace ace, edged a surprising Mack Pure Oil outfit, 26 to 23, in a thrilling overtime affair.

One other team, Ashland Y. M. C. A., advanced to the semi-finals in Class B by drubbing the Lexington Independents, 44 to 25.

Willis Billiards and Galion Barbers advanced to the second-round in the A division and will battle it out Wednesday for the right to meet the Lunches in the semi-finals.

Dump Mt. Vernon.

The Cuemen dumped the Shellmar Products of Mt. Vernon, 34 to 14, and the Galion club walloped Earl's Dairy of Marion, 23-9.

The Cleveland team meets the winner of the Reece Optical-Marion Snappy Service in the other semi-final affair Thursday.

Jimmy Breres' Lunches ran into a determined Galion quintet last night, but Johnny Rees handled the situation in splendid fashion with several clever last-minute buckets to ice the game.

The Lunches began clicking from the opening whistle and at the halfway mark had piled up a 16 to 6 lead, limiting the visitors to two baskets.

But after the rest period, the Galion club came back with a rush, and before the Lunchmen could recover, cut the lead to a 22 to 21 count.

And then Rees demonstrated his uncanny shooting ability with four overhand shots to give the winners a comfortable lead with two minutes to play. Rees tipped in 15 points to set the individual pace.

Lakewood found the Pure Oils anything but setups. The Oils, who had scored only one victory all season in the City A league, suddenly became a different outfit, and for a while it looked as though they were going to climax their season in a blaze of glory.

The clubs battled through a nip-and-tuck opening half that ended with the score deadlocked at 11-all. The Merchants took a slim lead midway in the second half, but the Oilmen, led by Fritz Vogel, spurted to knot the score at 23-all at the end of the regulation game.

Ken Noble's foul shot and Hart's bucket provided the winning points in the three-minute overtime. Fogel was high-point man with 12 points.

The Billiards established themselves as serious title contenders with their impressive showing against the Mt. Vernon club. The Cuemen shot into the lead in the opening minutes and were able to hold it to the finish.

Strengthened by the addition of Jack Miner, Bob Fisher and Harold Hayfer to the lineup, the Billiards looked like a well-balanced outfit. Outside of some spotty passing the club had things well in hand throughout.

Galion Wins Easily.

In the other games, the Galion Barbers ran unmolested over Earl's Dairy club. Holding Marion to a single basket in the opening half, the Barbers grabbed a 12 to 3 lead and were never threatened.

The Ashland Y. M. C. A. combine turned in a classy performance in downing the Lexington team. Ashland, led by Semple who tallied 14 points, held a 20 to 14 lead at halftime.

The teams go back into action Wednesday night with two Class A and two Class B games. The semi-finals will be played on Thursday and the consolation and finals on Friday.

Tygers Start Spring Grid Drills Monday

Murphy Expects Over 70 to Report at Empire Field.

PREPARATIONS for the toughest schedule faced by a Mansfield high school football team in recent years will get under way Monday.

Anywhere between 70 and 100 candidates are expected to report to Coach Russ Murphy for the initial drills which will be held at Empire field.

Stress Fundamentals.

Fundamental work will be stressed in the spring seassions, which will continue for four weeks, but daily inter-squad games are also planned, Murphy stated.

These games will be played at Empire field to permit the track and field team the full use of Stadium field.

The candidates will be divided into four squads, with each team playing a quarter a day. A full game will be played by each team at the end of four days.

Murphy believes that this arrangement will give the candidates game experience, and will not interfere with the rudimentary drills.

The majority of the candidates are sophomores and juniors. However, lettermen of last year not members of other spring teams will also report, but Murphy expects to work mainly with the inexperienced players.

Included among the lettermen who will participate in the drills are Captain-Elect Rich Nagle, Jack Dugger, Mike Horvath, Bill Russell, Dick McMullen, Joe Lehr, Ed Goettle, Harold Gallagher, Ike Smith, Howard Hershey and Grover Swoyer, jr.

The Tygers, who are scheduled to meet Canton McKinley, Massillon, Akron West and Sandusky next fall, will be built around these letter winners.

Nagle Only Veteran.

Nagle is the only returning player who saw regular action last fall, and Murphy is confronted with a difficult task in rebuilding the 1937 aggregation which suffered only one defeat.

Prospects for the fall depend on the development of the untried material, according to Murphy.

Included among the candidates to take part in the spring drills are Harold Hellman, al Heisz, Calvin Harper, Don Heinberger, Mose Eubanks, Richard Henry, Richard Massa, Robert Schroeder, Fred Atwater, Bruce Sweet, Robert Jones, Charles Weaver, Felix Palesky, Robert Wolf and Harry Crouse.

George Brooks, Ed Kinkel Dominick Mazza, Joe Kiefer, Orland Mott, Doyle Painter, Russ Beer, George Murray, Jack Dugger, Albert Poth, Robert Guegold, Joe Constino, Harold Gallagher, Mike Horvath and Richard Wendland.

Alex Radovich, Harold Williams, Harper Krupp Marshall Smith, Howard Hershey, Joe Lehr, John Pfahler, Bob Sites Dick Weaver, Bob Garrison, Foster Dials, Bob Roth, Russ Laughman and Dick White.

Dick McMullen, Bob Murray, Don Reichert Bill Russell, Joe Smollen, Tom Hillegoss, Charles Cutter, Ernie Engelsrud, Bill Burke, Art Williams, Al Schwaner, Ed Goettle, Gale Lintz, Jack Armstrong, Fred Bush, Harold Sauders, Grover Swoyer and James Lemunyon.

Battle For Title Tuesday

First Lutheran and Park Avenue Baptist club will battle it out Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A. for the Church Class B basketball championship.

The clubs, which finished the regular season with 16 wins and two defeats, will play only one game to decide the championship. The game is scheduled to get under way at 6 p. m. Don Cram, physical director announced today that a game will be lined up for a preliminary attraction.

CHAPTER II

Sylvia's lovely eyes had widened piteously. A clear, round tear brimmed gently over and rolled quite slowly and with immense effect down a faintly tinted cheek. Gay's little angry flame burned higher. If Sylvia would only get cross—but Sylvia never got cross. You might call her the most awful names, and she didn't resent them, or hate you. She just cried, and made you feel what a brute you were. She was making Gay feel like that now. A tear rolled down the other cheek too. She didn't wipe either of them away; she just let them fall on the pale grey gloves, and said in a lost-child sort of voice.

"I know—I've been horrid. There isn't any reason why you should help me, only—I'm so frightened, and I don't know what to do—I don't indeed." The tears were falling faster now. They welled up, ran over, and fell. They kept on falling. They put out Gay's little angry flame. She would have to take a hand. She had known that all the time of course. You can't just let an idiotic creature down because it doesn't know enough to come in out of the rain. She tossed her hair and said:

"Oh, I'll help you. You always knew I would. Stop crying, Silly Billy baby, and tell me what it's all about. What ever have you been and gone and done?"

Sylvia drew a long sighing breath, dabbed her eyes with a mauve handkerchief and opened a grey suede bag with a diamond initial on it.

Gay cocked her eye at it. "Wedding present?" she inquired.

"Rather nice, isn't it?" From an inner pocket she produced a scrap of newspaper. "There—you'd better read it."

The piece of paper was about five inches long and two inches wide. It looked as if it had been torn off the edge of the Times. On the blank margin there was scrawled in pencil:

"Same place. Same time. Same money."

The words stood one below the other like the rungs of a ladder, the letters coarsely printed with a blunt blue pencil. Gay frowned at them.

"What does it mean?"

"I didn't go." Sylvia said in a tired voice. "Then I got this one."

She fished out another piece of newspaper. A tear splashed down on it and smudged the blue pencil, but it was legible enough. In the same coarse scrawl Gay read:

"Tomorrow without fail, or your husband will know."

Her lips tightened. What an absolute first-class prize idiot Sylvia was.

"Look here, Sylly, it's no good beating about the bush. What have you been doing that Francis mustn't know? Is it another man?"

"Oh, no!" said Sylvia. "Oh, no—really not, darling. I—I wouldn't!"

Gay was a good deal relieved, because if there wasn't another man, the obvious thing to do was to tell Francis Colesborough and get him to wring this blackmailing creature's neck. She said so with a good deal of vigor. A vivid little creature in spite of the dark grey coat and black beret. Eyes, color and lips were all alive as she pointed out the folly of practicing concealments from your husband.

"You go straight home and tell him and you won't have any more trouble."

Sylvia paled visibly, clasped and unclasped her hands, and appeared completely panic-stricken.

"Oh, Gay—I couldn't!"

"Why couldn't you?"

"Oh, Gay, I couldn't—I really couldn't!"

Gay leaned back against the bed. What was it all about? She said, "Sylvia, what's Francis like?"

Because, after all, that was what really mattered. You could tell things to some people, and you couldn't tell them to others. Everything really depended on what Francis was like.

Sylvia responded with a slightly puzzled air, "Well, he's tall—and fair—and—"

"Yes—I saw him at the wedding and that time at Cole Lester. But I don't want to know what sized collar he takes, or what his handicap is at golf—I want to know what he's like in himself."

"Well, he's much older than I am. Let me see—you and Marcia are the same age—and Marcia is twenty—and I'm two years older—so I'm twenty-two—and Francis was twenty years older than me when we were married—and that was year ago—"

Gay looked at her almost with awe. "In fact, he's forty-two, Sylly, can't you really remember how old you are without counting up from Marcia and me?"

"You're so good at figures," said Sylvia in a helpless tone.

The conversation seemed to have slid right away from Francis. That was what happened when you tried to talk to Sylvia—you slipped, and slid, and didn't get anywhere at all. Gay made a determined attempt to get back to Francis.

"We weren't really talking about how old any one was. I don't care whether Francis is fourteen, or forty, or four hundred. I want to know what he's like to live with. Is he fond of you—is he nice to you—are you fond of him?"

Sylvia smiled a little consciously. "Oh, well, he's in love with me."

"People aren't always nice to you when they're in love with you." Gay was remembering Julian Carr who had made such a frightful scene when she wouldn't marry him. "And they're not always fond of you either." And she didn't know how she knew that, but she did know it.

"It's the same thing," said Sylvia in a puzzled voice.

"You're very lucky if it is," said Gay with a wisdom beyond her years. "But if it really is the same thing with Francis, then you haven't got to bother at all, because you can just go straight home and tell him, and he can deal with the blue pencil—stamp on it, or push its face in. Anyhow you won't have to bother any more."

Sylvia looked lovely and mournful. She shook her head.

"It wouldn't do at all, darling."

"Why wouldn't it?"

"Oh, it wouldn't. You don't know Francis."

Gay blew up. "Is that my fault? I keep asking you what he's like, and you're about as much use as a jelly that hasn't jelled! Why wouldn't it do to tell Francis?"

Sylvia appeared to reflect. The unusual effort brought a tiny line to her white brow.

"He'd be angry," she said at last. "I can't."

"That won't hurt you," said Gay. "You'd much better tell him."

Sylvia shook her head again.

"I'll do it for you if you like," said Gay handsomely. "I could do it most awfully well, because I could begin by telling him that you were the world's prize fool and couldn't help getting into some mess or other. And then I could tell him about this particular mess—and of course he'd see that it was up to him to get you out of it."

Sylvia stood up, and stood trembling. It was as if she had begun to run away and then lost heart, or strength, or nerve—perhaps all three. She said with twitching lips,

"Don't tell him! Don't—don't—don't!"

BOMBINGS HELD MOST DREADED WEAPON OF WAR

Writer Points Out World War Nations Kept Planes From Army Headquarters.

By DE WITT M'KENZIE

(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

NEW YORK—Let's talk about aerial bombings, including those which "fracture the morale of the people," since Signor Mussolini has invited discussion, having broached the subject in his graphic speech about Italy's preparedness for war.

Your correspondent doesn't mind discussing the matter, if he can do so from his present vantage point of comparative safety, rather than from the position of the man-on-the-ground looking up, as in the World war.

A lot of people are that way. They contemplate the bombing with considerable more composure when it's far away.

This reminds us that in the World war there apparently was a tacit understanding between the enemies that the bombing planes shouldn't bother army headquarters.

The revered king and queen of the Belgians lived with their three children throughout the war in a small house at La Panne, just back of the firing line. The Germans seemingly could have blown the royal family up by tossing a single shell.

Never Made Threat.

The Germans never lifted a finger against their majesties, however. It is only fair to say, of course, that the kaiser's soldiers didn't want to harm them. It is equally true, however, that had anything happened to Belgian royalty, allied airmen would have bombed the kaiser's headquarters, for they knew very well where he was.

Just to remind the king of the Belgians of the position, the Germans staged a little drama for him on one of his birthdays, when the writer was in the neighborhood. At high noon they threw over three huge shells which exploded in a vacant field near the "palace" at short intervals. Even among the Belgians it was considered as a sort of royal salute—"happy birthday," and "we could get you, majesty, if we wanted to."

Right after the armistice I visited the bomb-proof dugout of the German commander-in-chief, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, at Spa, Belgium. It was an amazing room of solid concrete, deep under the lawn of his chateau and reached by a long, sloping tunnel. This ventilated retreat was carpeted with a beautiful oriental rug, fitted with fine furniture and equipped with electric lights, electric heat, electric fan, and telephone.

Paints True Picture.

When Mussolini talks the language of the battlefield, one certainly can hear the roll of the drums of war and the tramp of marching feet. It was a terrible picture he conjured up when he declared that "war from the sky is destined to assume even greater importance in the war of tomorrow," and advised his people "that all those who can construct their existence in smaller towns in the countryside would do well not to await the twelfth hour."

The last war saw plenty of bombing of cities. I was in London during the historic daylight raid by more than 30 Germn planes. As I recall it there were more than two hundred casualties in a tenement distrct (censorship prevented publication of details), and the property damage was heavy.

That was a love pat compared with what probably would happen if poison gas were dropped into a big town.

Il Duce is right when he indicates that bombing affects the morale of the public. Why shouldn't it, when bombs are the things which seasoned troops hate more than almost any other form of attack.

I've seen many a city bombed, and it was a horror. People prayed on their knees in the street, and they were brave folk.

Of course it affects their morale. Moreover, it is a strain on the troops at the front to know that their women and children are being bombed.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

NEW YORK—(AP)—What the world needs is maybe a couple of good comets.

The comment is from Dr. F. R. Moulton, famous astronomer, to the Science Council, made up of the New York City science teachers.

He showed, by pictures, how harmless comets are. He told how many times the same comet had reappeared from ancient times to modern and been blamed for catastrophes.

There was Halley's comet, last seen on earth in 1910, due again in 1985. In 130 B. C. this same comet was believed to have preceded the birth of Mithridates; in 550 A. D. it was credited with signalizing the capture of Rome. In 1305 it forecast the plague—in 1456 Mohammed Second's conquests.

In 1910 Dr. Moulton received thousands of letters from anxious persons. A Texas grocer asked whether he ought to come to the University of Chicago, where Dr. Moulton was teaching, to study about comets.

Dr. Moulton replied that after a hard struggle the astronomers had the comet under control and could assure the grocer it would do the earth no harm.

STOCK LEADERS EXTEND RALLY IN QUIET MARKET

Analysts Study Trade Surveys Showing Increase in Steel Sales in March.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks extended their rally fractions to a point or more in today's early market proceedings.

At a quiet opening gains were registered for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, Howe Sound, Allied Chemical, N. Y. Central, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, and American Telephone.

Market analysts studied trade surveys estimating steel sales during March ran from 15 to 20 per cent better than February, although the recovery was not up to normal expectations for the month.

Steel authorities were said to be encouraged by growing signs large inventories in the hands of important consumers were rapidly dwindling.

the lowest income brackets, he said. He pointed out that the program in no way would interfere with the real estate business, for under the regulations, the real estate field could not be invaded.

If need for the program is found by the state board, a Metropolitan Housing Authority of five members, two named by the mayor, one by the county commissioners, one by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, and one by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson, would be created.

"This board would be specifically a corporation to conduct the business in this district," he said. "They have the power to buy and sell, and build and demolish homes in the area."

He suggested that the board be comprised of men who have a material interest in the project, an aggressive group that wanted to see building done here.

"You must have a board that will go ahead carefully but one that can act decisively," he stated.

The program, he pointed out tends to help the employment situation and stimulate building construction in the city. As an example, he cited several cities that were leading the nation in new building construction, and each one has a slum clearance project under way, he said.

After the Metropolitan Housing Authority has been set up, he said, they then make application to the United States Housing Authority in Washington for funds to proceed with the project.

"This can either be on outright grant to the board or a loan with the government taking a second mortgage on the properties," Bonstell said. "The first lien would be held by the bond holders who would furnish the city's share of the 10 per cent."

He explained that the only limitation on the housing project was that the cost of the homes do not exceed more than $1,000 per room. These can be either apartments, cottages or duplex homes.

In the meantime Associated Press dispatches from Columbus said that the state housing board today had engaged a technical adviser and prepared to open permanent offices for the first time in two years.

The state housing board, financed by a $10,000 appropriation from the legislature, functions only in an investigating and advisory capacity, and appoints local housing authorities where conditions warrant.

1938 FUND GOAL SET AT $53,950

Committee Cuts $1,521 Off Last Year's Budget; All But One Agency Affected.

Fonkalsrud, superintendent of the hospital, said the unusually large increase was needed to keep the institution on the approved list of hospitals.

Last October, he said, the American College of Surgeons, approved General hospital only conditionally, with certain recommendations, and if these are not carried out before the end of another year, the hospital will lose its approved standing. The $23,000 would cover two salaries of $5,000 a year, one for a pathologist and the other a Rontegonologist, (X-Ray expert), and about $9,000 worth of X-Ray equipment.

The Friendly House budget was pared $400 while the Visiting Nurses and the Y. W. C. A. grants were cut $300 each and the Boy Scouts $200.

The Girl Scouts asked for approximately $1,000, and were allowed $850.

Agency budgets set up for this year by the committee last night are:

Agency	Budget
Boy Scouts	$5,500
Girl Scouts	850
Community Memorial	200
Friendly House	7,000
General Hospital	6,100
Milk Fund	1,500
Salvation Army	5,000
Visiting Nurses	6,500
Y. M. C. A.	6,400
Y. W. C. A.	6,100
Administration and campaign	4,500
Shrinkage	4,300

The Community Memorial, which is set up as a fund to pay the expenses of the city's observance of Memorial day, is a tentative figure, and may be curtailed later, the committee said. In past years the patriotic organizations have received funds from the county commissioners as well as from the Community Fund. This is set up under a special fund by the commissioners which gives $100 to the G. A. R., $50 to the American Legion and $50 to the Spanish War Veterans.

The Community Fund campaign will be held May 9-21 with Arthur Hughes as chairman.

GAS PRICE TO GO UP HALF CENT

Increase Effective At Midnight, Oil Companies Announce.

Mansfield oil companies today announced an increase of half a cent a gallon on the price of gasoline, effective at midnight tonight. The increase, throughout the state applies to all grades of fuel.

Six major oil companies here announce the increase after the Standard Oil company listed advances in the wholesale tank car market and increased freight charges as reason for the raise.

The increase will raise the price of Ethyl gasoline to 21 cents per gallon, regular to 19 cents per gallon, and low test to 17½ cents, dealers said.

COMPROMISE ON REORGANIZATION

President Agrees to Changes In Bill to Escape Defeat of Measure in House.

er Bankhead indicated that debate of the bill might be postponed until Tuesday after adjournment late today.

He said the leadership planned to suspend the rules Monday and pass the senate-approved bill calling for a new reconstruction finance loan corporation lending program to business.

Bankhead said the leadership had bowed to the will of the house not to close off debate on the reorganization measure. Plans for a night session tonight have been abandoned, he asserted.

"I still am of the opinion that the bill will be approved by the house," he declared. "But I am not prepared to predict when a final vote will be reached."

House leaders refused to divulge the results of their secret poll of the membership on the chances of passage. Asked what the poll showed, house whip Boland (D Pennsylvania), smilingly replied:

"On advice of counsel, I have no statement to make."

The strength of the house opposition to the bill came late yesterday in a vote on a motion to limit debate on it.

The motion was defeated, 191-149. Jubilant over their victory, opponents of the measure early today predicted defeat of the bill itself, should it come to a vote. Administration supporters had planned to force a vote by tonight, but when the test went against them, slowed up. Telephone conversations with the president followed, resulting in his agreement to modification of the bill, in an effort to avoid final defeat.

ASHBROOK VOTES 'NO.'

Congressman William A. Ashbrook of the 17th Ohio district which includes Richland county was one of the 13 Ohio Democrats who opposed limiting debate, as proposed by administration supporters, on the reorganization bill. The move to limit debate was defeated, 191-141. The Ohio delegation voted 14-4 against limiting debate.

kitchen of the cottage by Charles Burger, Fifth avenue.

The note, which authorities were forced to retrace on the top sheet of the pad on which the original was written, referred to a debt owed Reed by an unknown person and mentioned a discussion of the debt by Reed and his youngest son, Virgil, 26, as the pair lay in bed at the Reed home. The son, who is employed on a farm near Shelby, lived with his father at intervals until last Sunday.

Because a half of the page in the pad under the original copy of the message had been torn out, officers were forced to follow the heavy pencil impressions on two pages. An attempt was to be made this afternoon to decipher the lower half. There was no hint of the identity of the person for whom the note was intended. The original was not found.

Plan to Question Son.

Authorities planned to question the son for more information about his father's business dealings.

Burger was one of trio of Reed's friends who had gone with him Tuesday evening to purchase cider at a farm near the city. Burger told officers the three had left Reed at Sixth avenue and that he apparently had walked on home from there.

Authorities are still trying to establish a time for the slaying, believed to have occurred from five to 12 hours before the body was found. A neighbor reported seeing smoke coming from a chimney at the Reed cottage at 5:30 a. m. Wednesday.

Reed, who Coroner Hugh C. Winbigler said was beaten over the head at least a dozen times, was felled by the first blow across his right temple, officers deducted.

Private funeral services for Reed, the father of 10 children, were to be held at 1 p. m. today at the Jones funeral home, with Rev. R. E. Tropf, pastor of the Mansfield Gospel tabernacle, officiating. Burial will be in the Butler cemetery. Reed was a native of Butler.

Besides his son, Virgil, Reed is survived by six other sons, Earl, Donald, Walter and Lawrence of Mansfield; Doyle of Ohio City, Dale of Wooster, and three daughters, Mrs. Virginia Horvath and Mrs. L. Andrews of Mansfield, and Mrs. Lilliam Williams of Lexington.

Northwest 'Pioneer' Party Has To Desert Boat for Cars To Keep Engagement.

Most of their trouble could be blamed on the treacherous Youghiogheny river. Once the unwieldly flagship almost crashed into a bridge and twice was grounded.

A government tug took the crew-less "Union Galley" down the Monongahela river to Pittsburgh.

The modern "pioneers" left Ipswich, Mass., last Dec. 3, traveling overland by covered wagon and on foot to West Newton, where they arrived several months ago. The boats used on the river journey were constructed during the lay-over, just as the original travelers did 150 years ago.

Now that they have left the unnavigable Youghiogheny, the youthful raftsmen feel that the journey down the Ohio river to East Liverpool, O., where they are due to arrive Sunday, will be clear sailing, as will be the remainder of the trip to Marietta, O., where on April 7 the Northwest Territory celebration is scheduled to open. They will be in Mansfield May 2.

Strikers Seize Control of Power Plants In Michigan

Not That It Matters

—By JANE WILLIAMS

THE GREATEST DANGER to the American people today is their own indifference; the gravest danger to the American form of government is that the majority of citizens don't understand what's going on.

Right now there are still millions of people who don't know what the reorganization bill is what it embraces; and they are wondering why all this hullabaloo.

This is what it means—it so completely changes the form of government and gives such wide powers into the hands of the president that he, himself, felt it necessary this week to cry out that he didn't want to be a dictator. If the bill passes, he will be, in effect if not in name. It will be one of those bloodless coups, in which a new government moves in before the country knows what has happened.

HERE are three of the important changes that will take place if the house and senate agree on a bill such as the senate has already aproved.

There will be no comptroller-general of the United States, and the president will have sole spending of vast federal revenues, with no check on the legality of the expenditure. He can do anything he pleases with OUR money and there will be no one to question him or say him nay.

Second, the bill gives the president the right to create any bureau he sees fit (he has already created more than enough of them) and to abolish any executive-controlled bureau or federal department he doesn't like.

THIRD, not the least serious, is his right, under the bill to do away with the bi-partisan federal civil service commission and take into his own hands, through a one-man commission of his own selection, every appointive federal job in the United States, by which he would control hundreds of thousands of jobs, which conceivably could run into millions if he had the right to create an unlimited number of bureaus.

If the American people were not indifferent to their fate, there would be mass meetings of indignant and outraged citizenry all over the United States, and every senator who voted for it would be dragged from his place, even if it had to be by the heels.

THE PRESIDENT expressed his appreciation of the senators who couldn't be "bought with telegrams," forgetting that those same telegrams are from citizens.

As for the senators who failed to heed the command of their people, isn't it possible that they held out for something much more practical than "telegrams." Senator Bulkley, who voted for the reorganization bill, owns one of the largest office buildings in Cleveland, which has stood comparatively empty for years. Now it is filled with federal agencies and bureaus. A good yearly rent is, we admit, far more tangible than telegrams. And what of the senator from the west who publicly expressed his intention to vote AGAINST the bill, but changed it suddenly when his state was given an allotment of $150,000,000 for the construction of a dam, and he switched over and voted FOR the bill?

ONE OF THE things which the president has proposed is that he be permitted to name six liaison officers, who have a "passion for anonymity" but at a good salary, to help with the national chores.

Let's see, whom could he appoint? Well, there's Eleanor Roosevelt, and John Roosevelt, Franklin, jr., and son James, who already has one of Papa's jobs, and could very easily take on another. But the other two? We almost forgot Sistie and Buzzie Dahl, the grandchildren.

H. V. WADE in the Detroit News suggests that Hitler re-write Dale Carnegie's book and call it "How to Win Friends and Influence People—Or Else". The reichsfuehrer may not win many friends, but he certainly influences a lot of people—or else.

* * *

ELIZABETH SEIFERT, housewife and mother, of Moberly, Mo., has won the $10,000 prize for the best novel of the year, with her "Young Dr. Galahad." Mrs. Seifert is the third housewife of the middle west who has found time to make the beds with one hand and write a $10,000 novel with the other.

If you have ambitions to write, pack up the kiddies and go to Kansas or Missouri.

AND speaking of writing, are you following Westbrook Pegler in The News-Journal? If you think this tall Connecticut columnist doesn't have punch, read his Thursday's column. If you read him every day, you may find yourself disagreeing violently with him, which is O. K. by Mr. Pegler. He's been disagreed with by expert disagreers.

A thumb-nail sketch of Pegler should include: He sweats blood over his daily column, thereby proving that hard writing makes easy reading. . . . He's modest and isn't satisfied with his column . . . He slumps down on his backbone when seated before his typewriter and smokes violently at cigarets and has great dexterity with a few well-chosen cuss words . . . He's all for the under-dog, right or wrong.

Goes to all the big murder trials. . . . Met a pretty newspaperwoman at the Joseph Elwell home right after the murder, and married her just in time to honeymoon on the Hall-Mills murder trial. . . . His column subjects are so diversified that if you read nothing else, you'd still have a bird's eye view of what's going on in the world. . . . And in words you can understand.

Fair Enough

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Don't take my word for it, but do a little reading and listening over there on the left and come back in a couple of weeks and tell me whether you notice the same thing that I have been noticing. It is my observation that they have developed a Babbitt type of their own whose mental habits and jargon are as imitative and whose morals are as wabbly as those of the poor, despised Rotarian of Sinclair Lewis' book who used the verb "to contact" and believed in God and the purity of womanhood but could arch his neck at the hat check girl in a speakeasy on his trips to the salesmen's conventions.

Doubledome Babbits you might call them, who prattle such words as "allergic," ideology," "schizophrenic" and the verb "to implement," and brag of their intellectual integrity though it compels them to indorse things which they hate. The verb "to implement" is very stylish in intellectual circles at the moment, and I am only now beginning to be able to encounter it without blinking. For quite some time it instinctively pictured a farm implement such as a corn sheller or manure spreader. Do you know what it means? It just means to do something. To implement a plan is to do it. That is all.

Many words in the jargon of Doubledome Babbitt came from the hokum of the Viennese headfolders and their pupils who took a quick course in questions and answers and settled in the high-strung centers of the world to charge high prices for explaining to two-timing and three-timing husbands and wives why they were uneasy in their minds.

Now, Intellectual integrity is the fad of the moment in Doubledome circles—but definitely as the saying is

If you have intellectual integrity, you take some "ism" such as Communism or New Dealism or labor organization and swallow it hair, horns, hoofs and all. If you don't you are a Fascist or a company man boring from within. Why they, of all people, should object either to dictatorship or to boring from within they do not make apparent, considering that all their own "isms," taken whole, call for regimentation and the bulldozing of minorities.

To believe in labor organization you must deny the existence of racketeering in unions and justify all strikes, even though they be contrived by dictatorial unioneers for their own motives with the purpose of destroying industry and incidentally, the workmen's jobs.

If you believe in the New Deal you must not gag at any personality or proposal bearing the New Deal stamp, however stealthy or brazenly dishonest the person or poisonous the measure, and you must decry as smearing any legitimate exception to the methods of anyone connected with the New Deal.

In this respect the similarity of the Doubledome to the standard American Babbitt is plain enough to embarrass both. Mr Babbitt revered womankind, but, as I recall, believed in the double standard, and the Doubledome believes that a man has a property right in his job, but would confiscate that property if the man doesn't join the Doubledome's favorite union.

You read Doubledome's books, magazines and listen to him with this in mind and see if you notice what I notice.

STATE ACTS TO FORCE STORY OF $1,500 'DEAL'

Ex-Examiner Fights Charge He Used Dealer as 'Tool' For Personal Profit.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The state securities division laid plans today to compel a former division official to answer allegations that he and a superior used a securities dealer as a "tool" for their personal profit.

Served with a subpoena, Edwin Judy of Columbus refused to submit to what he termed an "inquisition" until he had been permitted to study testimony already given before Securities Chief Ran T. Moore. The hearing will resume at 9 a. m. Monday, Moore said.

"Are you afraid to testify under oath?" Moore asked.

"By no means," Judy replied. "But I'm not going to permit myself to become a puppet in your little show except on conditions I have outlined."

Demands Transcript.

He demanded a transcript of testimony by Elmer W. Vossler of Cincinnati, who testified that Judy, formerly a division examiner, and Edward T. Carney of Cleveland, former division chief, received $1,500 profit on sales of stock licensed by the division.

Vossler, who is vice president of the securities firm of Vossler & Vossler, Inc., also said he gave Judy and Carney each 1,500 shares of stock in Ohio Mines, Inc., as compensation for advising him and for granting a securities license to his company.

The subpoena was served on Judy after he earlier was ordered out of the hearing room and the door was locked.

He told newspaper men: "The purpose of this hearing is to get an indictment against Ed Carney and me. I'm willing to testify, but not in an inquisition when I don't know what is going on."

He contended that the subpoena was served improperly.

Vossler, whose firm was deprived Jan. 6 of the right to continue sales of Ohio Mines' gold and silver mine stock in Ohio, placed into the record letters, checks and money order receipts which he said substantiated his testimony of payments to Judy and Carney.

MAYOR'S DEATH STIRS MEXICO

Juarez Executive Killed as He Opens Bomb Package, Sent Through Mails.

(By Associated Press)

JUAREZ, Mexico—Juarez was in turmoil today after Mayor Jose Borunda had been killed and Domingo Barraza, an office employe, critically wounded by a bomb mailed from Chihuahua City.

The blast wrecked the mayor's office in city hall last night.

Soldiers patrolled the building today. Thousands of residents lined nearby streets.

Barraza, torn by fragments of the bomb, was unable to tell what happened.

Humberto Escobar, the mayor's secretary, escaped injury. He said Borunda came in about 8 p. m. (CST) asked about the package and opened it.

"I happened to glance up just in time to see the mayor raise the lid on the package and then the flash of the explosion. There was a terrific blase of air. I was left unconscious. When I recovered I was lying in the wreckage of my desk, about 12 feet away."

Borunda, a former congressman, became mayor Jan. 1. He had been involved in a political feud between Gov. Talamantes of Chihuahua and former Gov. Gen. Rodrigo M. Quevedo. The mayor was aligned with Talamantes.

A. T. & T. 'REPORT' TO SERVE AS MODEL FOR TRUST LAW CHANGES

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The "proposed report" of the federal communications commission on the policies and practices of the American Telephone and Telegraph company was seen today as a possible model for revision of the anti-trust laws.

Observers who scanned the voluminous report believed that many of its recommendations were adaptable to other large scale industries.

In outlining a pattern for federal control of the vast telephone industry, the report emphasized that the Bell system was so tightly banded together and that its operations were so extensive, that regulation by state commissions would be—and has been—impossible.

This type of management "provides a perfect design for the absolute control of the apparent costs of rendering telephone service, and therefore, of telephone rates predicated upon those costs," it said.

To combat the situation, three alternatives were offered: (1) effective competition, (2) government ownership, or (3) effective government regulation.

An attempt to establish a competing system would be "futile," it held, and government ownership should be used only as a last resort.

If regulation is to be successful, the report contended, the jurisdiction of the regulating body should be as broad as the field within which the industry operates, and the regulating authority should be as powerful as the organization to be regulated. Neither the federal communications commission nor state regulatory bodies have sufficient authority to regulate properly at the present time, it said.

THREATEN TO STOP CURRENT IN 200 CITIES

Workers Won't Pull Switches Before Peace Parley Monday; Governor Hurries Home.

(By United Press)

SAGINAW, Mich.—Striking utility workers manned the power plants of Saginaw valley today after ejecting their managers, and held the electrical service of two-thirds of lower Michigan at their mercy.

Service was being maintained, Albert Stonkus, national head of the utility workers organizing committee, said the men would not pull the switches before Monday, when an emergency peace conference, called by Gov. Frank Murphy, is scheduled in Detroit. Gov. Murphy was rushing home from Florida where he had been on vacation.

Seek Pay Guarantee.

The workers, affiliated with the committee for Industrial organization, seized the plants late yesterday to enforce a strike over their demands for guarantees against wage cuts during the next year.

During a strike last year, the valley was without power for 24 hours. The union's contract with the Consumers Power company, against whom the present strike was directed, expired Feb. 28. A temporary working agreement had covered working conditions during March.

Workers occupied the plants peacefully last night after the strike had been approved at noisy mass meetings in several cities.

The plants seized included the huge steam generating plant at Zilwauke; a sub-station in Saginaw; a sub-station and gas plant at Flint, and a gas plant at Lansing. In all approximately 100 plants and sub-stations were seized.

Workers marched in and ordered the foremen and managers out. The officials complied and service was maintained at the sufferance of union leaders.

Sheriff Gives Warning.

At the Flint sub-station 25 work men were sitting on the floor playing cards when Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott arrived. Hhe sheriff looked in and said. "I want no monkey business."

"There won't be any interruption of service," a worker replied. "And if there was the hospitals and city hall would not be shut off."

The strikers controlled service for such cities as Saginaw, Flint, Bay City, Owosso, and about 200 small towns. The power area serves 350,000 customers, is inhabited by 1,933,000 persons and is heavily industrialized. Detroit and its surrounding automobile manufacturing area, would not be affected by any disruption of service.

Serving Other Races

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform) Lesson on the above topic for April 3, is Mark 7:24-37, the Golden Text being Acts 10.34, God is no respecter of persons.")

"In Christ there is no east nor west, in him no south nor north; but one great fellowship of love throughout the whole wide earth." Paul expresses this same thought of Christ as unifier of all races, by saying, "There can be neither Jew nor Greek, there can be neither bond nor free, there can be no male or female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."

Christ and a Foreigner.

Tired of the bickering of his critics about such insignificant matters as how to wash hands, Jesus felt the need of getting away. So, he made one of the longest trips of his whole earthly life, an excursion into the gentile country of Phoenicia, "the borders of Tyre and Sidon." Here a gentile woman, whose little daughter was grievously afflicted, came and besought his help in behalf of her child. Mother love ignores geographic and racial lines. She was a Syrophoenician Greek and Jesus a Jew, but her prayer leaped over the racial barriers between them, as she besought his help for the child of her love.

A Battle of Faith.

There followed one of the most unique battles of history, a battle of faith between this gentile mother and the Saviour of the world. At first he manifested a strange indifference to her heart-rending appeal, as "he answered her not a word." When he did break the silence, it was with an apparently sectarian remark that seems strangely foreign to the lips of Christ, unless we realize that his gracious purpose in uttering it was to draw out and test this mother's faith: "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Equal to the test, she came and worshiped him, and although she was not of that house of Israel, yet she prayed to him, "Lord help me." Then came this still stranger and sterner remark, "Let the children first be filled: for it is not meet to take the children's bread and cast it to the dogs." The word Jesus used here was really "doggies" and herein she saw her chance. She would not ask to sit at the first table with the children of the family, she would not even expect to share their bread; she would ask only the crumbs the children would leave. She was even happy over the privilege of the status of the "doggies" in the household of such a Lord and Master. So she prayed, "Yea Lord: even the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs." This humble faith was her victory. And Jesus gladly gave her the blessing he was only waiting the development of her faith to bestow, as he replied, "O woman, great is thy faith; be it unto thee even as thou wilt." "And her daughter was healed from that hour."

All Things Well.

From Phoenicia Christ swept in a wide circle back to Galilee through the borders of "the 10 cities" or Decapolis, keeping in foreign parts as long as possible. Here he healed a deaf mute, using as his unique means of grace his own spittle with which he touched the man's ears and tongue, crying, "Ephatha," that is, "Be opened." And the people spread the report which so aptly describes his entire ministry to all races and conditions of men, "He hath done all things well."

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Saturday, April 2. "He that is not against us is in our part." Read Mark 9:38-40.

Jesus worked mainly with a single small group of men—accepting them as they were and for what they were—but he seems always to have seen beyond them unaccredited helpers whom they did not see, or whom, having seen, they wished to put out of bounds. "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold."

Our religion has many unsuspected allies, whom officially it has not yet identified and recognized. The issues are such today, as between a religious and an irreligious interpretation of human life, that we can ill afford to insist that all the recognized workers fort he Kingdom of God shall be members of our particular "thade union." Not merely must the Churches learn to recognize each other much more fully, but all Churches together must be ready to accredit and to welcome persons still outside the Churches who are in the last analysis "on our part," as Christians, for the patent reason that by no stretch of the imagination can they be said to be against us. This is one of the tasks for institutional religion in the years immediately ahead.

Prayer: Give us, O God, devotion to that fold in thy Church which shelters us, but give us also a vision of many sheep scattered upon the hills in this dark and cloudy day, and fellowship with all who in any way serve as their shepherds. Amen.

Sunday, April 3. "In the world ye shall have tribulation." Read John 16:25-33.

One of the wisest thinkers of our time tells us that the problem of evil is the sunken rock on which all superficial religions finally suffer shipwreck. And just after the war a group of chaplains said that that religion has the most chance of surviving in the modern world which offers the best solution of the problem of evil.

The beginning of any solution of this problem is an acceptance of the fact of evil, whether physical or moral. The book of Job, with its utter candor, tells us that "Man is born unto trouble as the sparks fly upward." In the words of our text, the Gospels confirm this old conviction.

We shall not get anywhere with the matter until we have made our mental peace with tribulation as a normal and inevitable part of our life. The Christian religion proposes to conquer trouble, but it stoops to conquer by first conceding the initial unwelcome fact. Jesus was not less honest than Job.

Prayer: Almighty God, who in thy providence hast suffered offences to come in thy world, give us candor and courage to accept thy wise dispensations, but save us from ever calling evil good, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

SATURDAY, APRIL 2, 1938.

Drive carefully tomorrow—yesterday was the day for foolishness.

It's hard to tell whether the French government is a merry-go-round or a dance of death.

The Japs say they'll quit catching our salmon, but it would be just like 'em to spread propaganda among the schools of fish off the Alaskan coast and teach 'em to emigrate to Japan.

To Preserve Democracy.

WHAT can a private citizen do to help solve national economic problems and defend democracy? An outline for voluntary, constructive action was suggested by the new president of John Carroll university at Cleveland.

"As provision against the passing of our democracy," says the Rev. C. J. Horne, "let the citizen insist upon every protection for a free and honest press. Let the citizen demand open exposure of any attempt to restrict a free discussion of government affairs over the radio.

"Let the citizen encourage a more active co-operation among such national institutions as organized labor, the chamber of commerce, the National Manufacturers association and the major industries to correct, themselves, the abuses which their own failure otherwise forces government to control.

"The more chaotic our economic life becomes, the more it invites government interference."

It is good advice. Too many citizens, thinking they believe in democracy, do not want to be bothered about the work necessary to maintain it. They leave all that to others—politicians and self-appointed leaders—when the responsibility, in the long run, is their own.

Dogs for Hire.

THE CHICAGO MAN who had the novel idea of setting up a dog rental agency has developed a lucrative business in a few years. There seems to have been a real public need for the service. It began with his supplying dogs for advertising photographs. His dogs draw $25 to $100 for posing for portraits.

Next he began to rent dogs to guard children during the kidnap scare. After that his business grew rapidly. He now has patrons who rent dogs for a great variety of purposes. He can supply a fancy wolfhound as a companion for a Sunday-afternoon stroll, or a bird dog for a day's hunting, or a watchdog, or a handsome dog to impress important guests.

"The bulk of our business," explains the proprietor, "is in training dogs for obedience, for protection or for show purposes, but just the same the rental business has grown rapidly. Most dogs love to be trained, love to do what they're told. Each dog is trained to obey whatever person is holding the leash. They soon learn their temporary masters and, when one job is done, they go along to the next one without any difficulty."

Anyone who has developed a thriving new business during the depression years deserves credit for ingenuity and enterprise. Some dog lovers, though, will be a little anxious about the rented animals. Dogs, they believe, like to belong to the family and to make lasting friends. Can they enjoy life when they are compelled to serve many different masters?

Government Broadcasting.

THERE is talk lately of a new radio station to be set up, owned and operated by the government. The purpose, it is explained, is to give the government a means of communicating freely with friendly countries, especially in this hemisphere, and combatting the anti-American propaganda of European autocracies in South America.

The proposal seems to alarm some of our private broadcasting companies. They fear that, if the government once starts broadcasting with its own plant, it may compete unduly with the private stations. The latter feel that they have been generous in lending their facilities to the government and its representatives, and don't want to see the government getting its foot in the radio door.

Supporters of the proposal reply that the government can be depended on not to abuse its privilege and not to destroy any legitimate radio rights of private enterprise. They also point out that radio broadcasting, because of its essentially public nature and because of the limited number of wave bands, has been treated from the beginning as a business properly subject to public control; that it has always been recognized that private enterprise in this field is permitted by sufferance rather than absolute right; that the government doesn't have to ask anyone's permission to broadcast, any more than foreign stations do. All of which is quite true; but it makes an interesting argument.

CCC Needed.

IT SEEMS unlikely now that the government's plan to close 300 Civilian Conservation Corps camps on July 1 will be carried out. The closing was intended to help balance the budget for the next fiscal year, and was proposed before the present business recession became serious. The CCC program was not to be discontinued entirely, but greatly curtailed, so as to affect a saving of $123,000,000 compared with the present year's appropriation.

Most citizens will probably agree that, while economy is desirable, this is not the best place to practice it unless business improves and new jobs become available more rapidly than anyone now expects. The CCC has been perhaps the most widely approved of all federal efforts to cope with unemployment. Its cost is repaid in the conservation work done and in the human conservation which builds health and character in young men and preserves their morale in a difficult time.

That terrible sound you hear in the neighboring back yard is probably little Willie being spanked for contumacy.

Prof. Einstein has written a new book which makes relativity easy. Well, relatively easy.

We seem to be getting Snow White everywhere except in politics.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

A CENTRAL bank or 12 regional banks capable of lending up to two billion dollars to companies of less than one million dollars is proposed by C. B. McDonald, senior partner of a Cleveland investment concern.

The object, of course, is to give credit to the "small businessman."

This presumably is in addition or in extension of the authorization contained in the bill by Senator Carter Glass of Virginia to broaden the powers of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to loan to business. The RFC is said to be ready with a billion-and-a-half.

As stated in a Cleveland financial column, "McDonald's plan was developed since the advent of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, under which state and national banks are limited to buy investments with ratings by national agencies of B-1 plus or BAA, according to the agency giving the rating. He is not critical of these restrictions, but he points out that it penalizes the little business, stating it is almost impossible to underwrite issues ranging from $600,000 to $1,000,000. 'It is difficult,' he says, 'to persuade such agencies to give consideration for rating purposes of as little as a $1,500,000 issue'."

President Roosevelt has intimated in press talks that the government intends to go a long way toward seeing that "small business" gets sufficient credit at a reasonable basis.

Few persons object to this, but there are critics. Those critics believe over-expansion can be far more dangerous than lack of credit. Over-expansion is a form of inflation — and inflation, like a soap bubble, always bursts.

BUSINESS, NOT CREDIT.

It is not credit that corporations need so much as business. The larger corporations most certainly will not increase their debt load by obtaining additional credit. The smaller corporations would be foolish to obtain new credit at the moment to build new plants or to increase inventories, unless they see business definitely in sight.

In fact, a corporation needing credit badly at the moment, with operations at low ebb, is a weak link in our economic chain.

It is terrible to say that it is better that the weak go under than to pull down the strong—but that is a fundamental law of nature. No government credit will save weak corporations or weak businessmen.

Economists are saying this:

The way to save any business or industry is to see that it has an equal opportunity, that no monopoly can crush it, that all are regulated alike, taxed in the same proportion and administered with equal fidelity and ability.

But, to be sure, there should not be any monopoly of credit, either, whereby the large can crush the small.

All that, however, is a matter of regulation. Lending money will not solve it, economists are saying.

And, as for creating the business that will put plants into operation again, that, too, is a matter requiring the broadest possible outlook. If that means a form of semi-socialism, then business ought not to be frightened. That may be its salvation. The feudal age fought capitalism as something foreign and ogre-like. Yet capitalism was the only thing that saved any remnants of the feudal age—if that is any recommendation.

NO RELIEF IN EUROPE.

There will be no relief from economic disturbances in Europe.

Each violent action is followed by a further drop in foreign currencies, foreign credit.

Is Italy any stronger because it has conquered Ethiopia and Spain, together with the Nazis and the Moors? Or is Germany any stronger because it has "absorbed" Austria and helped to conquer Spain? And will it be any stronger as it goes even farther, and takes still more countries? And is Japan strengthened financially by its invasion of China?

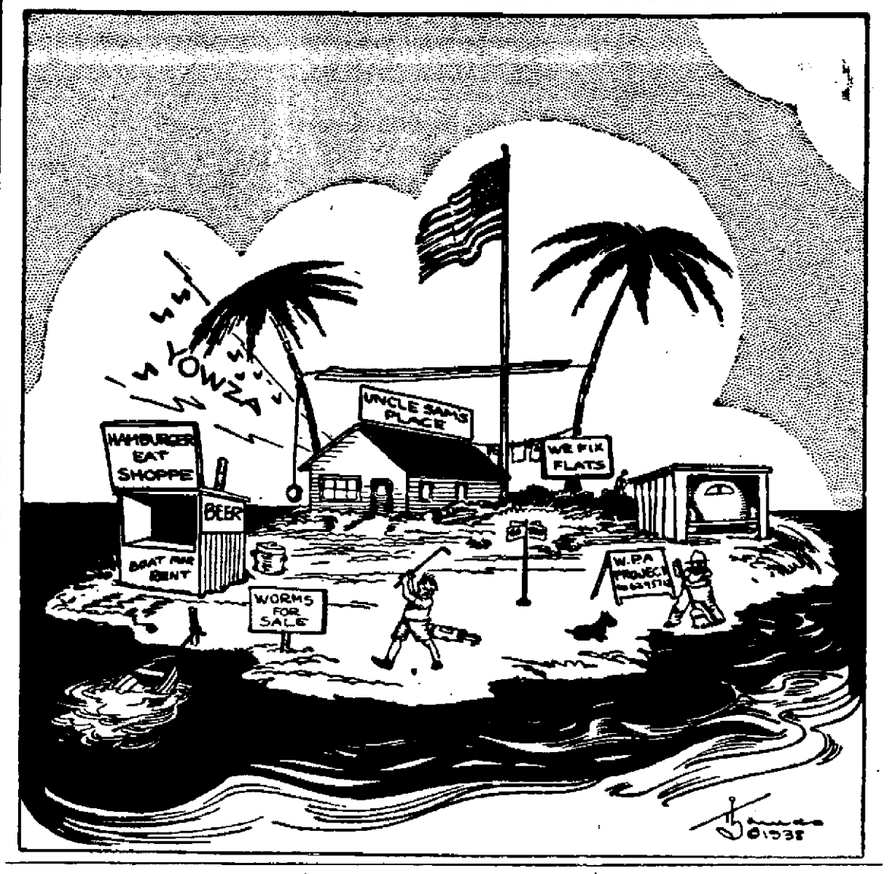
Italy is in a precarious financial condition. Germany must tighten its belt still more, the Japanese people must make great sacrifices. Spain is a ruined land, its best manpower killed off by the invaders and the defenders, its resources depleted beyond redemption for years to come. China has become a jungle for Japan, with guerrillas making the future decidedly uncertain.

Invasion, war does not pay. But, worst of all, in the modern world its results cannot be restricted. If Italy suffers, or Germany or Japan, or China, or Spain, all other nations likewise suffer in a degree.

Much is said of "turmoil" in France. But it is a healthy turmoil there. It is the agitation of majority groups for better economic and social conditions. That does not deplete world credit, as do the actions of the "stable" governments of Germany and Italy. Political and social unrest are natural upsurgings of humanity; warfare and suppression are unnatural, and nature takes terrible revenge, in the end.

Incidentally, England soon may have political and social upsurgings of its own, in conjunction with France. The English are becoming tired of a muddling-through government. And our own American 1940 election will not be a tame affair. Nor will Hitler and Mussolini have any too stable a government within a few years' time. People do not forever accept the loss of all their liberties in return for "security" when security fails them.

AMERICANIZING A SMALL PACIFIC ISLAND



Let's Look Around

Asheville, "In the Land of the Sky."

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—Already Asheville, in the "land of the sky," is looking forward to its annual Rhododendron festival, which extends through a week each June and which fills this city to capacity with visitors from all parts of the country.

Asheville, long noted as a health and pleasure resort, with a resident population of around 55,000, enjoys several periods of tourist business each year, one being along at this season when homeward-bound vacationists from Florida find it a convenient stop-over; another in June when the mountains roundabout are made beautiful by a great variety of rhododendron bloom, and again during July and August, when visitors in large numbers are attracted by the mild summer climate and the excellent recreational facilities.

Advantages of the Asheville section as a health resort date back centuries, to a time the Indians selected this locality as a neutral ground for the treatment of ailing members of different tribes.

Noticeable at once, in and around Asheville, are the number of sanatoriums and other places devoted to health restoration, especially for tubercular patients and those with nerve ailments.

A large government hospital for war veterans affected by tuberculosis is located nearby.

PRINCIPAL among the showplaces in Asheville is the Biltmore house and estate, magnificent former home of George V. Vanderbilt and opened for public inspection about eight years ago—with an admission charge intended to partially cover upkeep of the premises.

Built more than forty years ago, at a cost of $7,500,000—with unestimated additional millions spent for rich furnishings and rare art treasures from all over the world, a trip through Biltmore gives opportunity such as is seldom offered to observe methods for the expenditure of great wealth in a highly individualistic way.

Five years were required to build this immense country home, which is said to have more than two hundred rooms, including 40 bedrooms.

While the house was under construction Mr. Vanderbilt engaged in a world search for paintings, rare tapestries, carvings, bronzes, books and unusual pieces of furniture that he regarded as fitting for his new home.

Biltmore house, the foundations of which cover four acres, centers in an estate of 12,000 acres, on which there are 17 miles of macadam roads and 120 miles of riding trails and dirt roads. Information is given that more than 750 persons are employed on the estate, including those working at the elaborate Biltmore dairies. In the dairy herd are about 700 purebred Jersey milk cows—an attraction in itself for visitors interested in fine cattle.

Admirers of fine gardens will be delighted by the Biltmore gardens, which are designed to present a scene of beauty at any season of the year—an accomplishment that is possible in this climate.

'Few who come to Asheville miss paying a visit to Biltmore—a vast majority well satisfied that their home surroundings are less massive and ornate. It is well that there are a few multimillionaires—who are enabled to show other people how NOT to live.

In Asheville there is a street named after "O. Henry," famous short story writer, whose name was William Sydney Porter, and in Riverside cemetery here a simple tablet marks his grave.

ALL around this part of the country just now dogwood trees and red bud are in full bloom, presenting a colorful picture against the background of greenery along the mountain sides.

In addition to its scenic appeal, the Great Smokies national park, easily reached by motor, contains 135 species of trees and more than 1,500 kinds of spring flowers—offering a rich field of study for botanists.

COMING from Charleston to Asheville, a stop is naturally made at Columbia, capital city of South Carolina and boyhood home of former President Woodrow Wilson, his father having been at that time a teacher in the Presbyterian seminary in Columbia.

The state house, built of granite quarried within the city limits, was just being completed in 1865 when it was shelled by Sherman's army, passing along that way on its march to Savannah. The shelling did no great damage, fortunately, and five stars on the west side of the building indicate the spots hit.

A Confederate relic room in the capitol, and a number of monuments around the grounds, attract much interest—a monument to the women of the Confederacy being particularly impressive.

SPARTANSBURG, a city of 30,000 population located near the line that divides the Carolinas, won its name by the determination and hardiness of its early settlers and several battles of the Revolution were fought in this vicinity.

Now Spartansburg has become one of the important textile manufacturing cities of South Carolina, which, with its other industries, gives it the appearance of being a thriving community.

At the Textile Institute, a junior college, students divide their time betwen class rooms and factories, thus paying their own way through school.

A government reclamation project that attracts attention in this section is the effort being made to save 110,000 acres of land on the South Tyger river from destruction by erosion.

Thoughts of home came when a marker along the roadway gave the information, "Leaving Lexington, Entering Richland County."

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Nobody Home!" (The Poets Said It First)

The condition, of course, existed long before the metaphor got into circulation; but for sanctioning and popularizing, if not coining the idiom, credit must go to the poets.

It was Cowper who sang:

"His wit invites you by his looks to come
But when you knock it never is at home!"

In his choice of figure of speech, Cowper may have been influenced by Alexander Pope who said it first some years before him when he sadly confessed in Epigram:

"You beat your pate and fancy wit will come,
Knock as you please, there's nobody at home."

Everyday Poems

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Plea For a Small Favor.

Write me some little happy thing
When you are far away.
It need not be so much, just some
Bright happening of your day,

Some incident that made you smile,
Some little gaiety,
And I will hold it in my heart;
It will mean much to me,

A song that sings as merry as
That yellow-throated bird,
My small canary in his cage,
Write me some gay bright word.

And I will see you smile or hear
Your laughter gladly ring.
Some little merry tale will cheer
me more than anything.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

GOD THINKS OF US: I know the thoughts that I think toward you, saith the Lord, thoughts of peace, and not of evil, to give you an expected end.—Jeremiah 29:11.

What One Man Thinks

—By DAVID GIBSON

Most troubles are in their anticipation.

Good merchandise is always worth its price.

Inefficient management and dry rot of a business institution set in with monopoly.

The Germans say: None of us are sane, except Count Moltke—and he grew up in Denmark.

Tolstoi said that reforms by force must be maintained by force—the Versailles Treaty, for instance.

Stockings.

THE art of knitting was unknown in England previous to King Henry IV, 1367-1413, even as a domestic occupation.

Stockings were then made by sewing pieces of cloth together.

Queen Elizabeth wore the first pair of knit stockings in England. They were made in Spain and presented to her by the ambassador from that country.

Mental Suggestion.

THE late Clarence Darrow used to tell a story about an old man named Ephraim Shinniberry out around Ashtabula county, who wore a long beard well down past his middle—very thick and bushy—and like Johannes Brahms, he didn't have to wear any necktie. A prosperous man with a good sense of humor—all except his beard—he kept himself clean and his whiskered appendage, of which he was very proud, was always well combed.

One day Mr. Darrow, in the precocity of youth, asked this old man if he slept with his beard out over the bed covers or under the covers.

Mr. Shinniberry hesitated, and finally replied that he did not know—that he had never thought of it.

A week or two later Mr. Darrow met this old man on the street and he was clean shaven—all save a small mustache.

Mr. Darrow expressed surprise and asked why he had cut off his beard.

"Well, Clarence," replied Mr. Shinniberry, "after you asked that question a week or so ago, I tried sleeping with my whiskers out over the bed covers for a couple of nights, then under the covers for a couple more nights, I was uncomfortable both ways, so I cut 'em off!"

Spring Medicine.

ABOUT this time of year the city editor of the average city newspaper sends one of the women writers to prominent drug stores, "antiquing" for old time medicine—molasses and sulphur, for instance.

There is hardly an active pharmacist today that knows the formula of this national physic of 50 years ago, and it is not given in either the American or English pharmacopoeias.

There is an old saying in the drug trade that a standard remedy often becomes very feeble in the way of calls for it, but it never dies.

Drug stores still sell powdered sulphur and grocers still sell molasses.

The chief reason for the decline in the use of this particular Spring medicine is that people generally are now off a strict Winter diet of salt-pork and turnips—they can now eat fresh fruit and vegetables all Winter long—a small glass of sauerkraut juice as a first breakfast course is good Spring medicine all the year around.

Aunt Sally Prime, 87 years old, a much beloved neighbor of ours, says that the mixture for this old time Spring medicine was four teaspoonful of sulphur to a pint of molasses; that she used to give a three-months course of it, beginning in March, to her seven children until they, one by one, became old enough to physically defend themselves—always kept a pan of it on the back of the stove so that it would run freely on cold mornings.

The main point about this particular concoction was as an economical medicine with pioneer people—five cents' worth of sulphur would suffice and molasses was a household supply. The sulphur gave a mild cathartic action and the molasses had a certain tonic value in the iron that it contained.

Sulphur and molasses was a common English medicine. It is frequently mentioned in English literature of the Georgian and early Victorian period and referred to as brimstone and treacle.

Charles Dickens mentions it in Nicholas Nickleby—Wackford Squeers, the brutal head-master of a Yorkshire school, Dotheboys Hall, gave it daily to his boy charges to destroy their appetites—so they wouldn't eat so much.

About Eating.

THE great progress in human service, within my memory, has been in public eating places.

Strong butter, sour milk, spotted eggs and tainted meat are now very rare save in very remote parts.

It is no longer possible to sell food in a restaurant where the raw materials are not fresh, not well prepared and not served amid sanitary surroundings.

Obviously, better transportation, refrigeration and scientific food packing have had a good deal to do with the improved state of the average public eating place, but I think that the pleasure automobile has had more to do with it—more than better sanitary laws. If an eating place where we stop doesn't size up right, why we can drive on to the next town.

Tom Lafore, a boyhood friend of mine, who made an international reputation as a chef, in accord with the French school of cookery, once told me that there were more complaints in high class restaurants than in popular priced ones.

The reason was, as he explained it, that high class restaurants were patronized largely by the rich and very well-to-do—people who were not hungry; that nothing in the way of food selection or preparation could substitute for hunger. And all this on the old adage that hunger is the best seasoning.

Here is an idea that can now be applied in the average household in the way of food care and preparation:

The last time I was in my home town, Indianapolis, I met a now retired waiter who used to serve me in "Pop" June's restaurant. Pop had a far-and-wide reputation for steaks and chops that were "easy eatin' for dental cripples," as James Whitcomb Riley used to say.

This waiter told me that while "Pop" always bought prime meat, yet, if I ever noticed it, it was better in Winter than Summer; that "Pop" put his meat out on cold days so that it would freeze solid, then brought it in and thawed it out gradually before cutting and putting on the fire; that this freezing and thawing process had a tendency to break down the fibres of the meat and made for more "easy eatin'."

It is now possible at any season to apply this process—even in the household—by putting steaks and chops in the cold units of the average mechanical refrigerator, but the thawing process must be gradual and thorough before broiling.

The workers in most arts and crafts, and people generally, are never more happy than in giving information, but not so with high class chefs or super-restaurant keepers — they all know far more than they tell.

They are more secretive than sleight-o'-hand men.

Directly, by word-of-mouth, I have never gotten a thing out of one of them as to the preparation of any exclusive, special dish—only by close observation of their processes.
